President Wilson Will Not Seek Vote of Confidence From Congress

Washington, Feb. 26.—President Wilson is not looking for nor will he seek to get a vote of confidence from Congress on the League of Nations.

Administration officials allowed this to become known today, following much speculation as to whether such a vote would be forthcoming. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis recently announced that it had been planned to secure a vote of confidence from Congress, but that it had been decided to await the President's return so that his desires might be made known.

"The President does not feel that a confidence vote is needed," is the way one administration official put it today. "He feels that the League of Nations is part and parcel of the peace program, and that it must be submitted as part of the peace treaty for ratification."

FREEDOM OF SEAS DEAD ISSUE.

Freedom of the seas no longer is an all-compelling issue among the nations of the world.

That will be one of the main points of information that President Wilson will convey tonight to the members of the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees, who are to be dinner guests at the White House.

The President will explain that this problem, the rock upon which his peace proposals were expected to be shattered when he went to Europe some two and one-half months ago, no longer exists. It went out of being, the President will tell his hearers, when it was decided that membership in the league should include all of the nations of the world. Originally he raised the point for the benefit of neutral na-

TAKE VOTE ON PHONE STRIKE

Union Operators Casting Ballots Today on Sentiment for New Wage Scale

Unionized telephone girls of Greater Boston exchanges began taking a strike vote at No. 995 Washington street today, with lively prospect of a heavy majority in favor of a strike, according to persistent report.

Five hundred operators, members of Telephone Operators' Union, Local 1A of Boston and vicinity, met in the morning hours for voting. It was estimated that during the voting hours of 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. about 3,700 operators would cast ballots.

The vote was ordered as a means of canvassing the sentiment of the union members on the question of striking to enforce the union demand for a wage schedule of from $8 a week to a $22 maximum, the latter to be reached at the end of the fourth year of service.

Miss May June and Miss May Matthews were in charge at the voting place.

The cable splicers met at St. Andrew's Hall, No. 987 Washington street, the inside telephone men at Wells Memorial Hall, No. 987 Washington street, the linemen at No. 995 Washington street and the clerks and office workers at their headquarters, Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury.

The outcome of the vote will not be known until Friday, at which time the ballots will be counted by the appointed committee. If the vote is in favor of the strike, the question of date will be discussed by the executive body.

Demands for an increase in pay with shorter period in which to attain the maximum have been repeatedly refused by the Postmaster-General since acquiring control of the telephone wires. Union officials say the Federal administrator has also refused to allow the telephone company to make a new schedule.

They point out that railroad workers under Federal control of the transportation system of the country have received substantial increases. Telephone operators working on private branch exchanges connected with Federal controlled railroads receive $25 to $28 a week, they say.

WALTHAM FEARFUL OF NEW GRIP EPIDEMIC

Another epidemic of influenza is feared by the public health officials of Waltham. Twelve cases were reported yesterday. It is thought that the snow covering the city's streets is responsible. For the past five weeks only one or two cases a week have been reported. The disease seems to be taking the form it did in the "first epidemic."

Bill Favors Service Men for Street Car Jobs

Representative William A. Kneeland of Winchester, Republican leader of the House, filed today his own petition for legislation to require the public trustees of the Boston Elevated and of the Bay State, in filling vacancies and in new appointments, to give preference to qualified persons who have been discharged from the Federal service. Accompanying the petition is the following bill:

"The trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, appointed under the provisions of chapter 159 of the special acts of 1918, and the trustees of the Bay State Street Railway Company, appointed under the provisions of chapter 188 of the special acts of 1918, shall, in filling vacancies and positions under their charge, or in filling any new positions created by them, give preference to any qualified person who has been honorably discharged from the military, naval or marine service of the United States, and who has served in the army, navy or marine corps during the present war."

FIVE CENTS FAIR PRICE FOR FISH, SAYS EXPERT

Fish can be put on the market for 5 cents a pound, according to Alden A. Mills, the fish expert, consulted by the Boston American, which is endeavoring to find out why the public has to pay so much for fish in Boston.

Mr. Mills, connected with the Commonwealth Fisheries Company, and interested in a large number of vessels which regularly land fish at the Boston Fish Pier, South Boston, believes that the public is greatly to blame for the prevailing high prices.

"There is no reason why fish should not be put on the market for five or six cents a pound," said Mr. Mills. "The reason that it costs three or four times this is that the public stands for it. The public is imbued with the idea that fish are only good to eat once a week.

"Other commodities are sold on margins of a small per cent profit. In the fish business it has become a tradition for the retailer to charge 200, 300 and even 400 per cent. His claim is that this exorbitant amount is necessary to cover his overhead expenses, because he can only sell his wares one day a week.

"There is no reason why fish cannot be sold on a small margin of

TRAGEDY AT BIRTH FETE

Two Fatally Stricken and Others Made Ill at Charlestown Christening

The deaths of two young men and the severe illness of several other guests who attended a christening at the home of Harry Dallio on Medford street in Charlestown, where home-made wine was served, led to the arrest of Dallio today by the Charlestown police on a charge of manslaughter.

Dallio was booked on that charge at Charlestown Police Station, was questioned later at police headquarters, then was taken back to Charlestown.

Clerk James J. Mullen, of Charlestown District Court, heard the police evidence, then refused to issue a formal complaint against Dallio on the manslaughter charge. Dallio was immediately released.

FOUR IN CITY HOSPITAL.

Reports of the medical examiners as to the cause of the two deaths are awaited. The police took samples of the home-made wine for analysis.

Dallio told the police that he served beer and ice cream in addition to the home-made wine of his own compounding. He said that the wine was made up of one quart of alcohol, twenty-five drops of anisette, a pound of brown sugar and enough water to complete a gallon. He declared at headquarters that he had served this drink at previous times, that no one had ever been made ill by it, so far as he knew and that he, his wife and some guests at the christening had drunk it without any harmful effects.

Dallio also said that some of the guests had been drinking before they arrived at the christening.

Four of the guests are in the City Hospital. Several others were treated as out-patients at the City and Relief hospitals. The christening was Sunday. The deaths came the next day. The ar-

Words of Solomon Bring Soldier Back to Camp

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Feb. 26.—The most unusual request made by a soldier in this cantonment appears in a letter addressed to an officer in the Depot Brigade. It is signed by Private Solomon, whose home is in Alaska. It reads:

"Dear Captain—I would like to have my furlough extended a month later. My home town will shortly swing into the prohibition column. The saloon keepers are going to give a blowout. My friends have prevailed upon me to stay and enjoy the festivities. I have been promised some of the refreshments if I remain. Will it be all right for me to stay? Wire me at once."

This is the answer Solomon received:

"Solomon, your namesake, once said: 'The path of the just is as a shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day.' If you wish to practice what the wisest of men had in mind when he wrote that, get back to this camp as fast as the train can take you. If not, you will be adjudged 'Absent without leave,' and you know what that means, trial before a court-martial board on the charge of desertion and a stay of six months in the cooler."

Late reports have it that Solomon is hurrying to camp.

BELIEVE FIRE AT BRIGHTON WAS SET

Seventy-five tons of hay and twenty tons of straw were destroyed today by a two-alarm fire in the hayshed of Ogden & Thompson, No. 361 North Beacon street, Brighton. The police started an investigation at the request of company officials, who stated that no one had been in the building since 9 a. m., and contended that the fire must have been set.

The building is of corrugated iron, one and one-half stories, 200 by 100 feet in dimension. On arrival of District Chief Fox a second alarm was ordered. Besides the hay and straw, there were three carloads of oatgrass also destroyed.

The fire was discovered by Superintendent Walter Parker of the Boston Fresh Tripe Company. A fire occurred on the same premises last August.

The building is situated on the grounds of the Brighton Abattoir Company, and is owned by the Butchers' Slaughtering and Melting Association. Owing to the iron construction, the firemen experienced great difficulty in fighting the flames. They tore away the side walls in order to remove bales of hay.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The nomination of Hugh Campbell Wallace to be ambassador to France was sent to the Senate this afternoon by President Wilson.

PARADE BY HEROES OF WAR

Rousing Welcome Is Planned When Troops Return to Boston in April

Fifty thousand troops in line.

The most impressive military parade Boston ever saw.

Such will be the "Welcome Home" demonstration for the 26th Division when it parades through Boston streets after its return from France.

The 50,000 figure was given today by Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff of the Northeastern Department, who had charge of the detail arrangements for the army during "Wilson Day" in Boston. Colonel Williams said today:

> We expect to have 50,000 troops in line to welcome the coming of the 26th Division to Boston. We want to outdo ourselves in giving this division a rousing good time. I believe Boston will go wild over the event.
>
> We have heard nothing definite about when this division is coming, though it will be some time in April. Let them come as soon as they please. We will get ready in a short time to give them the warmest kind of a welcome.

DECLARE BOLSHEVIST AT MUNICH IN STATE OF SIEGE

Weimar, Feb. 26.—The cabinet today declared Communist (Bolshevik) headquarters at Munich in a state of siege. (Martial law had previously been declared in Munich.)

It was decided not to send Prussian troops against the Spartacides at Munich because of the anti-Prussian feeling in Bavaria.

Bavarian delegates who were coming to Weimar were turned back at the Prussian-Bavarian frontier.

Geneva, Feb. 26.—A throw of the dice determined who should assassinate Premier Kurt Eisner of Bavaria said a dispatch from Munich today.

This fatal game took place in a club and among those engaging was Rupprecht, former crown prince of Bavaria. Count Arco Valley lost and set forth on his deadly mission.

CONVICTED OF RECEIVING MONEY FROM EMPLOYES

Brockton, Feb. 26.—John F. White of Abington, foreman in the finishing room of the Moses Arnold Shoe Company for twenty years, was found guilty by a jury, after a trial lasting one week, on eleven counts of receiving money from employes. These were mostly Polish and Lithuanians and according to their testimony, White charged from $5 to $25 for giving them a position, and $10 for urging an increase in their pay.

'It Was Lots of Fun,' Mrs. Wilson Says of Her Trip

Washington, Feb. 26.—"It was lots of fun."

That is how Mrs. Woodrow Wilson summed in feminine fashion her part in the epoch-making visit to Europe. Not being a delegate, the President's wife had opportunity to enjoy herself.

"I enjoyed every minute of it. We were on the go constantly, but I did not seem to get tired," she added, in telling of her impressions.

The officers and crew of the George Washington were praised by Mrs. Wilson for their share in making the trip across and back pleasant. There were "movies" every night.

HINGHAM TOWN TREASURER IS SENTENCED

Brockton, Feb. 26.—Judge J. H. Sisk of the Plymouth County Superior Court today sentenced Edward W. Jones, town treasurer of Hingham, to serve two and one-half years in the House of Correction at Plymouth. There were ten counts of larceny against him and the total amount taken from the town treasury was $17,071.15.

District Attorney Frederick E. Katzmann in his address after the plea of guilty said that "Jones had made complete restitution to the last cent. The last payment was made yesterday. The investigation by the government revealed that this money had not been stolen for speculation, but was used in his home for his family. Jones was simply living beyond his salary."

The judge finally ruled that he must serve the term imposed, regardless of whether or not restitution has been made.

16 WOMEN PARTAKE OF JAIL DINNER

Sheriff Keliher Denies Suffrage Charge of "Scandalous Conditions"

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

The suffragists' hunger strike at the Charles Street Jail is broken.

The sixteen militants who were sentenced yesterday to ten days imprisonment for attempting to heckle President Wilson Monday failed to "go through."

The party of sixteen sat down at 11:30 o'clock today and ate their dinner with the other women prisoners.

Tales of "inhuman treatment," "intolerable conditions," "solitary confinement," told by Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the National Woman's Party, at the jail today, were flatly denied by Sheriff John A. Keliher and the matron, Mrs. Mott.

Miss Paul, who came on from Washington to direct the demonstration Monday, and George Roewer, husband of Mrs. Rose Roewer, one of the women prisoners, visited the jail today and were allowed to talk to the prisoners through the grating.

MISS PAUL'S STORY.

Miss Paul after her visit, told the following story:

"In the first place, when the sixteen women came to the jail they were all searched, and all of their personal belongings, their toilet articles, their pencils and pens were taken from them. They were placed two in

BIG LIQUOR SEIZUE IN ROXBURY DRUG STORE

Seven hundred dollars' worth of liquor was seized today in a drug store at No. 602 Dudley street, Roxbury, by Sergeant Horton of the Dudley street police station. The goods seized included about 25 gallons of whiskey, besides wines, beers and brandy, bottled and in jugs. The raid was made following the arraignment in the Roxbury Court of Samuel [illegible] Coon, charged with illegal sale of a pint of liquor to Frederick J. Crosbey of Dennis street, Roxbury. Coon pleaded not guilty and his case was continued to March 12. He is held in $300 bonds.

MAINE LEGISLATURE ADOPTS 6 MONTHS SOLDIERS' PAY BONUS BILL

CONGRESS URGED TO GIVE AID TO DISCHARGED SERVICE MEN

Augusta, Me., Feb. 26.—The Maine Senate today passed by a unanimous vote, in concurrence with the House, the bill introduced by Representative Benedict Maher of Augusta urging Congress to grant six months' pay to all honorable discharged men of the army and navy of the United States.

The Senate's action today completes the support of the Maine Legislature to the six-months' pay measure advocated by the American. The bill was introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday and passed without a dissenting vote.

Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to the [illegible] Senate, Speaker of the House of tional Senate, speaker of the House of Representatives and to each member of the Maine delegation in the National Congress.

Haverhill Shoe Workers Indorse Service Men's Pay Bonus Campaign

Letters of gratitude are pouring into the Boston American for inaugurating the six months' pay petition for soldiers, sailors and marines as hundreds of signatures are being added to swell the total up in the 200,000 mark.

The Allied Shoe Workers' Union of Haverhill heartily indorses the petition, according to a statement by Herbert Williams, general business agent of that organization. Mr. Williams writes that it was unanimously approved at a meeting of this organization and that it so appears on their records.

The Howard Associates, a Charlestown organization which has seventy-three members in the service, most of whom are still in France with their regiments, has come to the fore in unanimous approval of the petition, President James A. Ryan states. The service flag of this organization flies across the historic Bunker Hill street, and the organization believes in doing other patriotic things, such as backing up the plan to secure some adequate compensation for the services of its soldier members.

HARD TO SECURE WORK.

The pathetic need for this bonus is well illustrated in the case of William Stackpole of No. 31 Orange street, Worcester, recently returned from France. He writes that he has to care for his aged parents and that his father is blind.

"I would be glad to receive six months' pay," he writes, and the fervor of his appeal is to be read between the lines. "I have no money and I have no clothes and it is hard to get work." Stackpole has been at home since early February.

An indorsement that is reminiscent of the visit of President Wilson to Boston is contained in the letter sent from New London by [illegible] Fisher [illegible] Wilson. These sailors served [illegible] and [illegible] on the [illegible] is the boat on which the President was brought to Commonwealth Pier after being transferred from the George Washington in the lower harbor.

"Push this petition over the top and give us fellows who are in the service this reward," is the urgent demand upon the people of New England.

"The six months' pay would be a Godsend," declares James S. Meika of Brockton, who has been discharged since late December and has been unable to find work. Michael J. Murray says he has two boys in the service and backs up the petition with these words:

"Good luck to the Boston American. The poor boys would not have any show only for you."

The Dorchester Boys' Club, composed of young Americans who were too young to fight, declare themselves in favor of the war bonus through their secretary, Samuel Ellis.

THEATRICAL TROOP FOR PLAN.

A theatrical company in Lewiston, Me., is urging support of the petition. All the members of the company have signed the petition, according to Helen F. Coughlin, a member, who resides at No. 1646 Windsor avenue, Hartford, Ct. They want to see the boys who gave up everything get some small recognition, she declares. They are expecting nothing when they return but their jobs.

But while throwing itself heart and soul into the fight to have this petition embodied in a bill and passed by Congress, the Soldiers' Service Bureau wants the soldiers, sailors and marines to make any demands upon it consistent with its purposes. These are so broad as to include nearly every problem arising from changes to civilian life. In cases where they do not do so, the honorably discharged service man is invited to come and ask for aid just the same.

Everything possible will be done for him or for his family. Legal aid is extended free at No. 1 Beacon street, Room 524, and questions regarding the location of men and units will be answered as promptly as possible if directed to the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street.

The Soldier's Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the U. S. Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to location of the various units appear every day in the column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the department toward securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not operated as a question and answer column, but is working in connection with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestion for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

It is the duty of any person finding the discharge papers of a soldier or sailor to return them to the owner. If this is impossible, send them to the Bureau. We will do all in our power to return them to the person concerned.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Additional accommodation to the public is offered by the decision of the tax commissioner to keep "open house" until 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, March 1, for late comers. March 1 is the expiration date for filing State income tax returns.

GIFFORD ON THE JOB.

The unprecedented congestion of yesterday resulted in precautions against a repetition of the scramble, and today's crowd was handled without friction.

Patrolmen C. K. Kiley and J. P. Murray of Station 2 were stationed at the doors leading to and from the public office, where more than a score of men and women clerks stationed behind the forty-foot counter assisted prospective taxpayers in filling out their returns.

Assistant Income Tax Deputy E. Earle Gifford was conspicuous in the corridor as he moved about rendering preliminary assistance to taxpayers. A system similar to that in force at a polling booth on election day was instituted to facilitate the better handling of the crowds. People were admitted at one end of the corridor as fast as a vacant space appeared at the counter, and were shunted out another door after completing their returns.

At times the corridor was packed with people. Two long lines were formed to expedite matters. During the first hour's rush today approximately 1,500 people were accommodated. Nothing but the inclement weather prevented a still greater number from invading the building and gumming the machinery, in the opinion of the officials.

6,000 RETURNS FILED.

More than 6,000 returns were filed yesterday, but it appears as if an increasing number would result during the three remaining days of the present week.

At the office of the collector of the federal income tax in the Little Building, corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, two additional rooms equipped with tables and presided over by clerks, were opened to handle the rush to file the federal tax blanks. It is now possible to obtain assistance in filling out your federal income tax sheets in either of rooms K or L on the ground floor of the Little Building. The collector's office is on the second floor.

The time for filing Federal income tax returns expires March 15. Blanks for corporations and joint stock companies will be ready March 1. Now that President Wilson has signed the $6,000,000,000 revenue bill, no further detriment remains in the collection of income tax revenues.

People affected by the Federal income tax are reminded that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts likewise assesses a tax of 1½ per cent. on business incomes in excess of $2,000 and upon all income from so-called "intangibles," or income from stocks, bonds and dividends of a certain kind.

Stephen L. Stacey, assistant Massachusetts income tax deputy, today warned prospective taxpayers that the 1½ per cent. State tax applied to all "business" or "occupational" income above $2,000 and to all income from dividends and other tax exempt "intangibles" besides!

All residents of Massachusetts who during 1918 received any income from taxable annuities, taxable gains in transactions in stocks and bonds, or from taxable interest or dividends, must file a return.

All residents of Massachusetts must file a return, whether they are taxed or not, if their gross income from all sources during 1918 was more than $2,000.

President Wilson is expected to address the conference, probably on the night of March 3.

It has been known that among the earliest problems to be taken up by the President on his return would be that of reconstruction, particularly as it relates to employment for discharged soldiers and sailors.

STORAGE FISH IS SOLD FOR NEW FOOD

profit if the public will buy fish on other days besides Friday. And with high prices prevailing in other foodstuffs, there is every reason to believe that the public will do its part.

"Another important factor in enabling the public to get good fish cheap should be the cold storage. That it is not is due partly to the public, which misunderstands the function of the cold storage, and partly to the retailer, who thaws cold storage fish and sells them as fresh at the same high prices which fresh goods bring.

"As a matter of fact, cold storage fish is usually fresher than so-called fresh fish.

ENTITLED TO CHEAP FISH.

"The public is entitled to cheap fish. As Dr. Pennington has pointed out, it is the poor man's food. It costs nothing to sow it. The only cost of production is in reaping the harvest. There is no reason why the consumer should be obliged to pay the profits of several middlemen with fish. They should be able to buy it practically direct from the vessel.

"I maintain that the public should be able to buy fish today—and I mean haddock, cod, pollock, whiting, herring and finnan haddie—for five cents a pound or at most six cents. This sum represents the cost of marketing the fish as well as its original price.

POINTS RAISING FISH COST.

"The things which make fish high at retail at the present time are:

1—The aforementioned propensity of the public to buy fish only one day a week.

2—The high rents paid for fish stores on prominent streets.

3—Failure to make proper use of the vast amounts of fish in cold storage.

4—Excessive amounts paid for transportation and help.

"It is high time that someone awoke to the true state of affairs in this, and that the public was given a chance to get fish at five or six cents a pound, which is from one-half to one-third of the prevailing figures."

BANDIT TRUST THAT PULLED OFF EVERETT ROBBERY ROUNDED UP

GANGSTERS IN MANY RAIDS

How the Everett Holdup Was Planned, Executed and the Spoils Divided

Richard Sweeney, New York gun man, alleged driver of the car used by the bandits who held up, shot and robbed Frank R. Brown, paymaster of the Everett plant of the General Electric Company, has been removed from the Charlestown State Prison to the Concord Reformatory, to complete the two-year sentence imposed upon him by a Federal judge in New York.

Before going to Concord, however, he enjoyed an automobile ride which covered some of the territory used by the bandits in making their escape from Everett to Providence following the Everett theft. Sweeney is serving a two-year sentence for participation in a robbery of pig tin from freight cars in New York. Following the completion of that sentence he must answer to the Everett indictment.

Sweeney is but one of five members of a bandit trust that the Boston police allege has made life miserable for Boston dice shooters and gamblers during the past year or two. Likewise it is believed that they have included Providence, Marieville and Blackstone in Rhode Island in their list of spots visited during the time robberies in gambling houses have been prevalent.

THE GUIDING GENIUSES.

The police of Boston also believe that the men who have been responsible for bringing these gunmen to Boston and tipping them to the right places for visitations have also been located. It is directly charged in connection with the Everett holdup that Bennett, Celeste and Whittemore were the guiding geniuses. In fact, they have been indicted on that charge.

Today, for the first time, some of the facts concerning the Everett holdup can be told. The gangsters, there were seven in all at one time or another, made three trips into Tileston street before they finally robbed Brown. The touring car in which they rode was one that had been stolen in New York.

In it they drove from New York to Boston for the "big touch," as they put it. The first time they came something happened to scare them off. On their second visit there was another automobile on the scene, loaded with swarthy individuals whom the gangsters thought were there for the same purpose. Fearing a gun battle, they drove away. Then came the third and final visit, which resulted successfully.

FINAL PLANS FOR THE JOB.

On the day before that visit the gang came over in two automobiles. They met in Cambridge, with some of those who were responsible for their coming, and made the final plans for the job. On one of the previous jobs the signal that all was well was to have been given when something dropped from the paymaster's car. On the final visit the signal was different.

That morning Brown went to the bank together with Whittemore, Guard Kibbey and the chauffeur. The bandits made their appearance in Tileston street at the appointed hour. Brown, with Whittemore, his other associates and the money, started back to the bank over the usual route. Just before Tileston street was entered Whittemore left the machine and went into a pharmacy. He was not in the car when the actual robbery occurred.

Following the completion of the robbery the bandits escaped through Charlestown, Cambridge, the Back Bay, South End, Hyde Park, Dedham, Norwood and then on to Canton. In driving through Columbus avenue, at a high rate of speed, one of the number plates on the machine dropped off. The plate was retrieved and the journey on toward Providence resumed.

GANG DIVIDES THE SWAG.

In Norwood the party halted, removed the money from the paymaster's bag, placed Kibbey's cap in the bag, threw it away, and then drove on. From Everett to Providence one of the members of the band was continually upbraided for having fired the shot which nearly cost Brown his life. Though the men carried guns, shooting was not on the program unless absolutely necessary.

The party drove through Providence and then out to Riverside, a resort section of the river, where a vacant barn had been established as a rendezvous. There the money was counted and split. All save $2,500 of the stolen money is said to have gone to the members of the gang who actually did the work. The balance is alleged to have gone in another direction.

$50 ADVANCE IN SUITS BY NEW YORK TAILORS

New York, Feb. 26.—The downtrodden tailors can't squeeze any kind of a respectable profit out of a $100 suit, so they propose to add another little $50 to the price, according to report here today. The Fifth avenue tailors are the discontented ones and they say that no small part of their troubles is due to the high cost of labor.

DRINKS ADVANCE 5 CENTS A GLASS; SMOKES UP

Beer and Ale 15 Cents, Cocktails 30 Cents; Result of New War Revenue Bill

All drinks up five cents today. Smokes up from one to three cents and certificates issued on cigars, tobacco and cigarets cut with every purchase.

Boston smokers and liquor drinkers ran against the snag of advanced prices today, twenty-four hours after the new war revenue bill was wet with the signature of President Wilson.

EXTRA NICKEL ADDED.

Beginning today, drinks of all sorts across the bar cost the consumer an added nickel piece over the prices of yesterday.

On Washington street the white aproned custodian of the mahogany sweeps in a "two-bit" piece rather than two dimes of yesterday in return for which he sets out the old rye highball. Bronx, martini and manhattan cocktails are paid for with a quarter and a nickel instead of a quarter.

Beers and ales in the nine-ounce glass are now 15 cents. Yesterday they cost ten cents. Where some of the bars have cut their beer and ale glass quantities to eight ounces this particular bar sticks to the nine ounce measure.

"TAX ON TEETH NEXT."

"This tax is only a beginning," said a proprietor of a bottle goods store. "You wait, young fellow," he said. "There'll be more taxes yet, taxes on liquor, on tobacco and smokes, on clothes on food and on false teeth.

This proprietor has advanced his popular local brands of cigars one cent. Popular cigars that he sold yesterday for 11 cents he sells today for 12.

"I used to pay $84 per thousand for cigars,' he said. "Now I pay $87."

PETERS FIGHTS 'DAYLIGHT' REPEAL

Mayor Wires Congressmen Protesting Against Change of Plan

Mayor Peters today protested against the proposed repeal of the daylight savings plan, sending telegrams to the senators and representatives of Massachusetts now at Washingon, as follows:

"As the Mayor of the City of Boston I desire to register my protest against the repeal of the daylight saving measure which provides for the advance of the clocks of the country one hour during the Spring and Summer months. The experience of last year has been proven beyond doubt the economic value of the plan, and thus the loss which will accrue to every one by a reversion to the old time schedule during the Summer months. Not only will there be a distinct economic loss, but millions of workers will be deprived of the additional hour of daylight, which has proven to be of vast benefit to their health and recreational opportunities, and thus to the industrial and commercial potentialities of the nation as a whole."

COOLIDGE ACCEPTS WILSON'S INVITATION

Governor Calvin Coolidge, following the receipt of a telegram from President Wilson requesting his presence at a conference of Governors and Mayors in Washington on Monday next, today announced that he would accept the President's invitation. The conference is for the purpose of discussing the present labor and unemployment situation throughout the country with a view to suggesting a solution for labor unrest.

Mayor Peters will also attend.

ACCUSE BRIDE IN MARRIAGE FRAUD

Former Fall River Girl Brought Back From Jersey Camp by Providence Officers

Providence, R. I., Feb. 26.—Mrs. George Desrosier, formerly Miss Anna Lambert of Fall River, Mass., eighteen-year-old two weeks' bride of a soldier stationed at Camp Raritan, N. J., was brought back to Providence today to answer to a charge of obtaining a marriage license under false pretenses to marry Desrosier.

The Fall River police are asked to hold Pardon Oulette of County street, Fall River, who is charged with unlawfully impersonating Fred Lambert, father of the girl, and signing the name of Fred Lambert to papers which permitted the girl, who is under age, to marry.

It is charged that on February 7 George Desrosier with Oulette and the girl visited the office of the city clerk at Newport and again on February 14. On that day a marriage license was taken out for Desrosier and Miss Lambert, and Oulette, who is alleged to posed as the father, gave his "consent" to the marriage.

Desrosier is now back at Camp Raritan, where the military authorities, it is understood, will try him for his part in the case.

The girl's parents, it is said, are prosecuting the case.

LEVIATHAN TAKES ON MEN OF 27TH DIVISION

By International News Service.

Brest, France, Feb. 25 (Delayed).—The 27th Division of the American army, composed of New York State troops, began embarking today upon the giant transport Leviathan for transportation to New York city.

(The Leviathan was formerly the German liner Vaterland, one of the biggest vessels afloat. She was taken over by the United States government.)

'Wilson a Good Scout,' Say Men Aboard Official Ship

New York, Feb. 26.—"Wilson is a good scout, and so is Mrs. Wilson," was the expressed verdict of 2,294 officers and enlisted men and a ship's crew of nearly 1,000 when the Presidential ship George Washington reached here from Boston.

They all agreed that President Wilson is a good sailor, that he is a movie fan and that he can tell dialect stories. One of his favorite pleasures on the way home was to gather a group of men about him and tell stories of the old South, in which art he is a master.

He went to the movies every night in the "Old Salt Theatre" and enjoyed them with the zest of a boy, according to Chaplain P. F. Bloomhardt. On the night of February 22 he saw six reels of himself taken during his tour of Europe.

solitary confinement and locked in a cell.

"This was because they refused to perform any work in the jail and because they made a concerted demand, through Mrs. Jessica Henderson, their spokesman, to be treated as political prisoners.

"As political prisoners in Germany, in Russia and in England are treated, they have a right to demand their own food, their own clothes, their own physicians, to be able to write and to receive letters and to refuse to do any work in the jail.

"The women have been allowed no books, save a Bible that is on every stand in each cell. They have been allowed no writing materials, no pen or ink.

"Not one of them was given a nightgown or a toothbrush. Their own articles were taken from them and nothing was given them in their place.

"INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS."

"They all asked for more blankets, and they were all refused. The cells have no ventilation that one can see. There are no doors, no privacy of any kind.

"The women were furnished one towel each, and that one was dirty. Conditions are intolerable—simply intolerable!

"We are going to present a report of conditions to the Mayor and to authorities higher up, and our committee is already at work. It includes Mrs. Robert Gorham Fuller, Mrs. Hallam Movius and Mrs. Agnes Chase."

Miss Paul further cited the "admirable" conditions in Germany, and said: "Our country is behind Germany in progress."

Furthermore she said: "Having had no hand in making the laws, we are in no way bound to obey them!"

Sheriff Kelliher refuted Miss Paul's statements, one by one, calling Mrs. Mott, matron of the women's prison, to tell of the exact conditions in that side.

"When the women came here last night," he said, "they refused to give their names or tell who they were. We did not know Mary Smith from Sarah Jones. All we could do was to put them in their cells.

"Their clothing was not taken from them, neither were any of their toilet articles taken away. They were even allowed to take their toilet articles away. They were even allowed to take their banners in their cells, and they have them there now, as far as that goes.

"Each woman is in a separate cell. While it is customary on the men's side to put two men in a cell, it is never allowed on the women's side, and we have no double cells. The women asked if they might walk the corridors and they were told that that was against prison rule.

"One woman in No. 28, 'Jane Doe,' asked for pen and ink last night, because she wanted to write. It was given to her. She is the only one who made such a request.

"When the women went into their cells they asked if there was sufficient bed clothing and if they might have extra blankets if they required them. They were told that all they had to do was to ask. If they did not get the blankets it was because they did not ask for them.

"Several bundles came for the women last night and more have come today, but until we know who each woman is we cannot give her a bundle that perhaps does not belong to her. Each woman may claim her bundle if she cares to do so.

"The women have so far been asked to do no work, so it is not true that they have 'refused to work.' They have their own clothing, and they have not been asked to wear the prison clothes.

"They were given one towel when they came in—and it was a clean towel.

PHYSICIAN ON HIS ROUNDS.

"The women themselves told the matron this morning that they had had a comfortable night, and that they slept well. They spoke of the cleanliness of the cells, in comparison with other jails that they had been in. I would rather have the testimony of the women who were here over night than the word of Miss Paul, who was not.

"These women are prisoners and they are going to be treated as such. They will eat the prison fare while they are here, and they will have no food sent in from the outside. They will obey the prison rules and observe prison discipline.

"Oh, yes, and as for the 'man' that Miss Paul claims she saw walk unmolested past these cells, where the women were lying, with no door over the grating and no privacy at all,' he was the jail physician and was making his morning rounds to see that they were all right, physically!"

The Massachusetts State Branch of the National Woman's Party today addressed the following telegram to President Wilson as a result of the arrest of the twenty-two women on Monday:

"Mr. President—Twenty-two women were arrested in Boston on the day of your arrival because they dared to exercise their guaranteed right of petition. When the suffrage amendment is passed this agitation will cease. We call upon you as leader of your party to secure the one vote needed to pass the amendment before this Congress adjourns."

Members of the National Woman's Party are planning a country-wide flood of protest against what they call the "outrageous treatment being accorded their sisters under conditions in the Charles street jail," which they call "the scandal of Massachusetts."

Political appeals to Mayor Peters, Bay State representatives in Congress and even the President himself were part of the program of protest mapped out by local leaders of the National Woman's Party today.

"Protests will begin to pour in from all over the country against the outrageous treatment of our women," declared Mrs. Agnes H. Morey of Brookline, State chairman of the party.

"The conditions at the Charles street jail are the scandal of Massachusetts," said Mrs. Robert Gorham Fuller, State treasurer of the party. "Why, even in Washington, where the women's jail held few women except streetwalkers and shoplifters, the toilet arrangements were palatial compared to Charles street jail."

PROTEST TO COURT.

"But this is splendid publicity," she continued. "At our March meeting it will be the Boston prisoners who will sit on the platform and tell their experiences, not the Washington prisoners."

The following letter to Mayor Andrew J. Peters and Judge Wilfred J. Bolster, protesting the arrest, imprisonment, sentence and treatment of the arrested suffragettes, was sent today by Mrs. Morey:

"The State branch of the National Woman's party, numbering over 1,000 women, vigorously protest against the outrageous procedure employed in trying twenty-two suffragists who were arrested while exercising their right of petition guaranteed by the first amendment to the United States Constitution. At the moment these women were being taken to Charles street jail, they were not even informed as to where they were going or what sentence had been imposed upon them.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND BIG B. U. BANQUET

One of the largest banquets ever arranged by Boston University Law School Alumni Association will take place on Friday evening at 6:30 in the Hotel Somerset. United States Senator-Elect David I. Walsh, Judge George W. Anderson of the United States Circuit Court, and Homer Albers will be the guests. Addresses will be made by Herbert Parker, former Attorney-General; Henry S. Hurlburt and Captain W. R. Buckminster, formerly of the 101st Regiment. Governor Coolidge, Chief Justices Arthur P. Rugg and John Aiken will attend. Tickets may be obtained from Moses L. Lourie in the Tremont Building.

PARADE PERMIT ASKED FOR WOMEN

Lawrence Strikers Say They Will Defy Police by Sunday Mass Meeting

Lawrence, Feb. 26.—The first attempt on the part of the Lawrence strikers to secure a permit to parade was made today when a sub-committee composed of women from the general strike committee made an appeal to Police Commissioner Peter Carr for a permit.

The committee asked for a permit for women and children only to parade.

This, according to A. J. Muste of Boston, a strike leader, will put directly up to Commissioner Carr the question of his motives in denying parade permits to strikers. The commissioner is quoted as having said that hitherto he has denied these permits because he feared violence. Inasmuch as women and children are not likely to commit any acts of violence, Muste says, it lays the chief open to fear of violence from his own men if he denies the permit.

WILL DEFY POLICE.

It was also announced today that a mass meeting will be held on Saturday afternoon in a vacant lot at the corner of Short and Chestnut streets, although the police commissioner has stated that he will allow no more mass meetings even on private grounds.

A coffee house for the convenience of strikers was opened today at No. 125 Common street, and three soup kitchens have been opened in different parts of the city.

WALSH COLLEGIATE CLUB HONORS SENATOR-ELECT

High tribute to President Wilson and presentation of a mahogany humidor to Senator-elect David I. Walsh featured a "Godspeed meeting" given to Mr. Walsh at the Hotel Lenox. He was the guest of the David I. Walsh Collegiate Club. Mr. Walsh quoted Arthur J. Balfour, who said that President Wilson was "the world's greatest statesman." Other speakers were Michael J. O'Leary, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and Richard H. Long. Mr. Walsh will leave for Washington to take the oath of office March 4.

HELD ON CHARGE OF STEALING DIAMONDS

Albert Lutch, twenty, of North Shore road, Revere, was held in $500 by Judge Cutler in the Chelsea court today on charges of larceny of two diamond rings and money to the value of $1,105 from Mrs. Gertrude Berg of Revere on Sunday, February 16, while Lutch, who is a furniture polisher, was doing some work in the home of Mrs. Berg. He was arrested in Providence.

TWO POLICEMEN KILLED ATTEMPTING ARREST

Rahway, N. J., Feb. 26.—Patrolmen James Lynch and Jacob Kraus were shot and killed today while attempting to make an arrest in a Main street tenement. Lynch was shot as he entered a room on the second floor. Kraus, who was sixty years old, saw his comrade fall, but dashed into the room and received a bullet beneath the heart. He staggered to the police station and gave the alarm before he died. Giuseppe Mesachio is under arrest, charged with the shooting.

U· S. SQUADRONS ALMOST CAPTURED GERMAN FLEET IN NORTH SEA

WERE WITH BEATTY WHEN FOE HAD NARROW ESCAPE

This is the first of a series of articles of the activities of the more important branches of the Navy, taken from official records at Navy Headquarters, and presenting, in many instances, the news for the first time. The American Battleship Division, of which little has appeared in the news dispatches, was out constantly in the North Sea searching for German convoy raiders. Numerous engagements were had with the enemy submarines, and on one occasion the battleship New York, flagship of the division, narrowly escaped destruction. Details of this action were obtained by the International News Service at the time from the fleet, then off Scotland, but could not be used because of censorship restrictions. The Navy Headquarters now makes the details public for the first time. The other articles will appear in the near future.

By DELT EDWARDS,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Feb. 15 (by mail).—The American battleship division, which, as a part of the allied grand fleet, made numerous cruises into the North Sea in search of German convoy raiders, was attacked six times by German submarines.

On one occasion all five of the battleships were in two engagements in the same afternoon, between 4 and 6 o'clock. A barrage of sixteen depth charges either sank or drove off the submarines.

On another occasion the flagship New York, with Rear-Admiral Hugh Rodman, commander of the division abroad, struck a submarine and destroyed her. This was in Pentland Firth, between the tip of Scotland and the Orkney Islands. The New York lost two blades off her starboard propeller.

Soon after, or on October 16, at 1 o'clock in the morning, she had a narrow escape from destruction. She was coming down the North Sea in a brilliant moonlight. A submarine rose, fired three torpedoes at the battleship and dived.

The torpedoes went directly across the bows of the battleship. They missed their mark because the flagship was travelling only about twelve knots an hour, by reason of her damaged propeller. Ordinarily, in the same circumstances, she would have been making something around sixteen knots.

The battleships New York, Florida, Delaware and Wyoming joined the allied fleet December 6, 1917, mainly with headquarters at Edinburgh, Scotland. The Texas came to the division February 11, 1918, and the Arkansas July 25, 1918, relieving the Delaware.

This group was known as Division No. 9, but was designated the Sixth Battle Squadron of the Grand Fleet, under command of Admiral Sir David Beatty. It had a complement of 355 officers and 7,369 men.

RECEIVED SURENDER.

This squadron formed part of the line which went to to receive the surrender of the German High Seas Fleet in the North Sea.

Moreover, from the admiral down, every man was elated over the thought that their position in the line would probably have given the honor of first engaging the enemy should the German ships ever attempt a dash from their hiding place.

The Sixth Battle Squadron made innumerable cruises on the slightest report that the German raiders were out after convoys. The first action with a submarine came on February 8, 1918, when the Florida and Delaware were manoeuvring off the Norwegian coast awaiting a return convoy.

A submarine rose half a mile away and subsequently discharged four torpedoes at the Florida and two at the Delaware. Both ships successfully manoeuvred to escape the torpedoes. Two depth charges were dropped by destroyers and the submarine did not show again.

The Texas had a little excitement on April 17 last, when in 56.56 north latitude and .48 west longitude, the periscope of a submarine shoved up through the sea about 700 yards away. The battleship opened fire. Two convoying destroyers whirled about the big ship dropping depth charges in a wide barrage. The submarine did not show again.

BIG DOUBLE ATTACK.

The double attack occurred on June 30 last. The division—New York, Florida, Delaware, Wyoming and Texas—were steaming along in about 58.44 latitude north and 2.34 east longitude. They were abreast in open order. At nineteen minutes past four o'clock a periscope was reported by the Wyoming.

The destroyer Parker also heliographed sighting submarine. The Delaware, Florida and Wyoming opened fire immediately on the indicated position. Three destroyers on one side of the division jumped to the place and put a depth charge barrage around.

The Parker threw over three, the Radstock two and the Salmon one. The Radstock cruised around in circles for half an hour, but there were no further signs of the submarine.

At 5:26 o'clock the same afternoon a submarine was reported trailing the Delaware. She opened fire. No periscope was seen afterward. The Salmon threw over four depth charges, the Sable three, the Parker two and the Rocket one.

On the bright moonlit night of July 28 the Arkansas was cruising in 58.44 north latitude and 2.34 east longitude when she sighted a periscope. She opened fire with the port sky gun, meanwhile going to emergency full speed ahead and swinging to bring the object fired at ahead. A torpedo was sighted coming toward the ship, but it was avoided.

NEW YORK DESTROYS U-BOAT.

The New York's lively days were on October 14 and 16. Warning had come that three large enemy warships were heading across the North Sea in a northwesterly direction to intercept a large convoy then off the Orkneys. Word was sent to the convoy to be on the lookout and to expect an attack at 10 o'clock that night.

The American division headed through Pentland Firth, one of the only two free openings still left for the enemy submarine since the great barrage was established between the Orkneys and Norway. Water rushes through the Firth like a millrace twelve knots an hour. Submarines must navigate with the current or be endangered.

The New York led the way, in the rear of a crescent of destroyers. Suddenly she felt a heavy bump on the starboard quarter. Then came another bump aft. The starboard propeller hit something. The bump was felt all over the ship. No wreckage or oil came up.

Admiral Rodman's official report to Admiral Sims reads:

OFFICIAL REPORT.

"The New York was leading the division into Pentland Firth, westerly course, mid-channel. Just as she was turning to the northward with right rudder, hence stern swinging to port, a heavy under-water blow was felt on our starboard quarter, followed immediately by another which hit the starboard propeller.

"Taking everything into consideration, it is my belief, and that of the commander-in-chief and other high officers of the Grand Fleet, that when we changed our course northward and westward we crossed the track of the submarine, that she punched us first with her bows and as she drifted we struck her with two blades of our starboard propeller.

"It is my opinion that we cut open her bows, filled the forward compartment and inflicted such injuries that she became unmanageable and sank. We were in thirty fathoms of water. A dent was found in the bottom corresponding to that made by a submarine."

This report has been approved by a court of inquiry.

The fleet turned back, having sighted no enemy vessels. On October 16, at 1 o'clock in the morning, the division was coming down the North Sea in a flood of moonlight.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

The ships were standing up like smoking factories. Suddenly the officers saw three torpedoes shooting for a point ahead of the New York like serpents spuming up six-foot fountains in their wakes. The ship was thrown off her course to evade them. The destroyers jumped to where the torpedoes were reported coming from. All the battleships piled on speed to get away from the nest.

More than thirty depth charges were put overboard drumming the ocean until the battleships were at a safe distance.

Admiral Rodman's official report says:

"It was bright moonlight. Three torpedoes were fired by the submarine. All passed ahead of her, doubtless due to the fact that her speed was misjudged. The wakes were unmistakably seen by the captain and gunnery officer among others. A patrol sighted and reported a submarine in the vicinity about this time."

Wonder has been expressed frequently that none of the American battleships was blown up by mines in the North Sea. That is accounted for largely by the use of the very effective sweeper called the paravane, invented by a British naval officer and attached to all of the large war vessels.

IMMUNITY FROM MINES.

This device prevented a mine from striking a vessel anywhere except on the exact bow, almost a physical impossibility because of the heavy waves always thrown up. It swept the mine to the right or left and then cut it loose from its cable, allowing the vessel following to shoot it and explode it.

"The enemy was missed by about four hours."

This brief sentence in the official reports of the United States Navy Headquarters here, tells of the close call the German High Seas Fleet, or a considerable part of it, had from being captured. This occurred on April 25 last.

Reports of the imminence of a dash to sea by the High Seas Fleet were current continually. Admiral Sir David Beatty, commanding the Grand Fleet; Admiral Hugh Rodman, commanding the American Battleship Division—or the Sixth Battle Squadron, as it was in the allied lineup—were looking for the Germans to make a run any time.

Although the Grand Fleet was far more powerful, more modernly developed, equipped with many adjuncts of which no navy had any idea, the officers were very frank to say that "if the Germans make a run of it, we will all know we have been in a battle."

ALL WERE CONFIDENT.

Not one officer was over-sanguine about blocking the Germans against a very effective manoeuvre, although, of course, they were more than confident that there could be nothing short of defeat for the high seas fleet. She could not have stood up in battle against the formidable array that lay off the Scotch coasts.

"But," one of the high commanding officers said to me, "suppose the Germans should make a run. Our mine barrage is completed all the way across the North Sea from Scotland to Norway. Supposedly they cannot get through that. No single vessel, or small squadron, could.

"But, for the sake of argument, suppose the Germans should conclude to make a desperate, last effort and send their entire fleet out and through the mine barrage. Suppose they have 1,500 ships and the allies have 3,000. All 4,500 ships cannot by any possible means come into contact in one position.

"Suppose the Germans should run for the barrage, send in their fleet regardless of the dangers, and break a path through with the loss of say fifteen, fifty or even a hundred ships. They would have a chance of getting through maybe one hundred vessels, while the others might have to stick it out in a battle. They might get through even two hundred ships; possibly more.

SERIOUS POSSIBILITIES.

"One hundred German ships loose in the Atlantic, cutting off our communications, or at least interrupting them for a month or two months, would have a very serious effect on our supplies of munitions and food. Moreover, they would compel such a distribution of pursuing ships that it would be almost impossible to anticipate the result. Stranger things have happened in this war."

This was not a one-man opinion, but a sober thought had by many of the men who are in the actual business of fighting at sea and looking to all possible emergencies.

But the whole Grand Fleet was prepared for any jump. The chief mission of the American battleships, of course, was to reinforce the British and engage the Germans. For this purpose they were kept at the highest possible state of battle efficiency.

Steam was kept up constantly. The battleships were ready to scout out into the North Sea on four hours' notice. On several occasions they were put on two and a half hours' notice.

Constantly recurring reports that the High Seas Fleet was coming out put the Sixth Battle Squadron on two and a half hours' notice on April 23.

The very next day well-defined reports came that a "large German force is operating in the North Sea." The Grand Fleet went out at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Admiral Rodman's squadron was with it. Within two hours the whole group of ships was bowling across into the northeast for their ideal strategic centre.

The great desire of Admiral Beatty was to let the High Seas ships get out, then cut in back of them and bar them from returning to their base. The Grand Fleet reached the strategic position at 5 o'clock the next day.

But, according to the American Navy report: "The enemy was missed by about four hours. It was believed that he was out in force to attack the Norwegian convoy and supporting forces."

During this operation several floating mines were destroyed by gunfire. One of the British flagships was attacked by a submarine which fired two torpedoes at her. The submarine was in turn attacked by destroyers with depth bombs.

Another lively chase was when the New York struck a submarine. In the evening of October 12 last a report was received that three large German vessels were sighted at 6 o'clock in the North Sea, steering in a northwesterly direction. A convoy was then standing to the northward along the west coast of Scotland. It was warned to look out of an attack at 10 o'clock at night.

The Sixth Battle Squadron, a battle cruiser squadron with its enormous, seemingly invincible batteries, and a light cruiser squadron, accompanied by destroyer screens, left port soon after midnight for assigned positions to the northward and westward of the Orkneys. They were to scout and patrol the passages between the Orkneys and the Shetlands with the hope of intercepting and engaging the enemy. The ships scouted all around the passage for two days, returning to port without having sighted the enemy ships.

Another American division, of which little or nothing ever was heard during the war, was Battleship Division No. 6. It was located at Berehaven, Ireland. Its purpose was to attack large German vessels which the allied commanders intended to send against the troop convoys by way of the English Channel.

During the Summer of 1918 the German Navy was severely criticized by its own press and taunted by the allied press for not venturing out to a battle. It had become evident that the enemy submarines, unassisted, were powerless to prevent the great New York-London troop ferry service, as some persons confidently called it, from delivering its hundreds of thousands of men regularly. It was learned from Intelligence Department sources that the enemy contemplated sending out battle cruisers to attack convoys.

In anticipation of this, the Division No. 6 was established. Rear-Admiral T. S. Rogers was in command. He had the Utah, flagship; the Nevada and Oklahoma. His complement was 202 officers and 4,222 men.

This division was held constantly on four hours' notice. Twice the division made trips into the Channel escorting convoys when submarines were reported in the vicinity. But they never were in touch with submarines.

'Wilson a Good Scout,' Say Men Aboard Official Ship

New York, Feb. 26.—"Wilson is a good scout, and so is Mrs. Wilson," was the expressed verdict of 2,294 officers and enlisted men and a ship's crew of nearly 1,000 when the Presidential ship George Washington reached here from Boston.

They all agreed that President Wilson is a good sailor, that he is a movie fan and that he can tell dialect stories. One of his favorite pleasures on the way home was to gather a group of men about him and tell stories of the old South, in which art he is a master.

He went to the movies every night in the "Old Salt Theatre" and enjoyed them with the zest of a boy, according to Chaplain P. P. Bloomhardt. On the night of February 22 he saw six reels of himself taken during his tour of Europe.

Leicester, Feb. 26.—Corporal Harry Dorr, just back from France, explained today that the art of camouflage, so successful in the war, can be attributed to the French women. You couldn't tell the mothers from the daughters. They were experts in the work of camouflage, and gave the soldiers cards and spades on making things look like what they weren't."

To keep the stomach fit, to keep it braced and in training at all times, the very simple expedient of a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after meals will prove a constant source of sure protection and preparedness. "TIZ" FOR ACHING SORE, TIRED FEET

Use "Tiz" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

People who are forced to stand on their feet all day know what sore, tender, sweaty, burning feet mean. They use "Tiz," and "Tiz" cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. "Tiz" is the only remedy in the world that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet and cause tender, sore, tired, aching feet. It instantly stops the pain in corns, callouses and bunions. It's simply glorious. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel after using "Tiz." You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't tighten and hurt your feet.

A GREASY, PIMPLY SKIN
COATED TONGUE AND FOUL BREATH

Poisons in the blood, accumulated through the winter months, should be promptly driven out by taking sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses, but it is so nauseating! Well, then, just get a tube of Sulpherb Tablets and they will do the work pleasantly. They are made of sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs—sugar-coated tablets. Stomach, liver, bowels and blood are all benefited by their occasional use. Greasy skin, pimples, coated tongue and foul breath tell you if your blood is bad. Mrs. B. Clarke, 905 Main St., Buffalo, writes: "I have been using your Sulpherb Tablets and like them very, very much." Sold by all druggists. Don't accept ordinary "sulphur" tablets and be nauseated and disappointed.—Advertisement.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.—Advertisement.

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—Advertisement.

FREEDOM OF SEAS DEAD ISSUE, WILSON WILL TELL DINNER GUESTS

THERE WILL BE NO 'NEUTRAL' NATIONS IN LEAGUE

tions during war. Under the league plan, if it finally is adopted, there will be no such thing as a neutral nation.

Therefore the question of freedom of the seas and predominant naval armament has disappeared, the President will tell the committee. Administration circles took the position today that the situation, so far as the nation-wide controversy affecting the league of nations proposal is concerned, is rapidly shaping itself along lines favorable to President Wilson. They expect that following tonight's dinner the issues involved will be rapidly crystalized.

It is assumed that among the information that the President will convey to the senators and Representatives tonight is the following:

ALL EUROPE WAR WEARY.

First—That all Europe is war weary and unless a real League of Nations is created that will end wars for all time revolution in some of the countries is inevitable.

Second—That he has been assured by the representatives of all of the allied associated powers that unless a League of Nations is made possible the whole world must be divided into armed camps and competition in creating armament instituted that will spell absolute bankruptcy to the greater part of the civilized world.

Third—That failure of the United States to measure up to its full duty in the matter will "break the heart of the common people of Europe."

Fourth—That all of the conferees in Paris have agreed that the League of Nations must be created, and that all endorse the tentative draft now on the table of the plenary conference.

Fifth—That the proposed league does not violate any provision of the Constitution of the United States.

Sixth—That he is fully convinced that no matter what the opinions of the members of Congress as to the merits of the proposition may be, the entire people of the United States will approve the plan and will insist on its ratification.

It was stated at the executive offices that the President probably would go to the Capitol today to confer with Senate and House leaders on legislation in which he is particularly interested.

FOR EMPLOYMENT SERVICE.

He is reported as being very anxious that some provision be made for the retention of the employment service of the Department of Labor, the appropriation for which was stricken out of the sundry civil appropriations bill on the ground that it was legislation in an appropriation measure, against which a point of order could be raised. Just what procedure he will recommend that this important agency be spared was not made known, but the belief was expressed that he would urge that separate legislation be enacted immediately.

The President also was said to be anxious to see prompt action on the oil lands leasing bill, the Kenyon measure appropriating $100,000,000 for the reclamation of lands for returned soldiers and on the water power bill. All of this legislation has been dragging with the possibility that Congress would adjourn before any action could be taken. It was made known today that President Wilson's public addresses in addition to his possible appearance before a joint session of Congress before returning to France would be in New York.

TO SPEAK IN NEW YORK.

This address would be planned, it was stated, either for the day previous to his sailing on March 5, or on that day. The exact day depends upon developments during the next week, it was explained.

Adoption of the League of Nations or renewed war are the propositions that confront the world today, President Wilson is expected by his advisers to tell the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees at the White House dinner tonight.

The President hinted at the dangers in his Boston speech when he spoke of the small nations to be created by the peace conference, and expressed the fear that without a League of Nations to guarantee their status they would be pounced upon by the larger nations that surround them that even now are lying in waiting.

Main Peace Conference Delayed Until Wilson Returns for Sessions

By ROBERT J. PREW,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Feb. 26.—It is now practically certain that there will be no further plenary sessions of the peace conference until President Wilson returns from the United States.

This insures that the discussions of the constitution of the League of Nations will be put off until the middle of March.

Premier Lloyd George is scheduled to arrive from London the end of this week unless his return is delayed by the strike troubles. When he returns the "Big Five" will take up the Russian problems.

The American delegation has been admitted to the councils of the powers. Great Britain, France and Greece will probably put in claims as mandatories for Constantinople under the terms of the League of Nations covenant.

The international commission on labor legislation is encountering difficulties in laying down world labor principles which will not conflict with the established industrial customs of certain countries. Progress is being made, however.

GERMAN FRONTIER PROBLEM.

The tremendous problem which faces the conference now is the establishment of the new western boundary of Germany.

In the absence of any definite word from the peace conference regarding the Irish claim for representation, John O'Kelley, the Sinn Feiner, who has just arrived in Paris, as the envoy from "the provisional government of the Irish republic" said today he would call upon Colonel E. M. House of the American delegation to learn if possible, the attitude of the Americans toward Ireland.

"Ireland is the oldest nation in Europe," said Mr. O'Kelley. "If Ireland is left out of the peace conference it will make the League of Nations hollow. In other words President Wilson will have failed in his mission to Europe.

"The entire country is now under martial law with a total of 200,000 British troops patrolling every town and village. If the conference recognizes the Irish request Professor De Valera, president of the Sinn Fein organization, who recently escaped from an English jail, will immediately appear in Paris.

(It had recently been reported that De Valera was dead).

Mr. O'Kelley said he knew the whereabouts of De Valera but refused to reveal them.

FRANCE IN PERIL.

From military viewpoints the suggestion is made that the Palatinate and Sarre valley (bordering the Rhine) be formed into a neutral state. Writers, not officially inspired, however, are representing France as being in a perilous position, having lost two-thirds of her treasure and one-fifth of her fit men as a result of the war.

Germany's war debt is estimated at $240,000,000, whereas Germany's wealth before the war was estimated at only $70,000,000.

Even allowing for a big increase due to the general rise of values, Germany's assets would remain less than half of her liabilities.

Prior claims on Germany's existing resources are conservatively estimated as follows:

France	$40,000,000,000,
Belgium	$4,000,000,000,
Serbia	$2,000,000,000,

These sums cannot be paid in full at once, possibly may be liquidated by yearly payments extending over a period of twenty years, but it is the belief of many Frenchmen that they may never be paid.

Bill for National Army to "Defend Germany's Frontier" Is Advanced

Weimar, Feb. 26.—Despite strong opposition from the Socialists, who raised the cry of "militarism," the bill providing for a "national army of defence" has passed the second reading. Debate upon this measure shows that the spirit of militarism is still alive. Socialist opponents of the bill declared that "the army will be used "the resurrection of militarism for the suppression of the revolutionary forces."

War Minister Gustave Noske declared that "the army will be used chiefly to defend our frontiers. Its strength, if we are fortunate, will not amount to one-third the strength of our old army."

Cummins Outlines Substitute Plan for League of Nations

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Although the American people "passionately desire a League of Nations to prevent future wars," they will not accept the league proposed by the Paris covenant, which "would commit the United States to a course which will end in humiliation and disaster," Senator Cumins of Iowa declared in the Senate this afternoon.

Particularly he referred to the mandatory powers over Turkey as proposed in Paris and declared it would require "hundreds of thousands of armed men, thousands of civil employes and billions in money."

Cummins proposed a substitute plan which he believed the nation could "accept with honor and without surrender of any part of its sovereignty." His plan embraced that justifiable disputes should be settled either by arbitration or adjudication; that with respect to other international disputes war shall not be made until some permanent regular international body in which every league of the league is represented shall have had a fair opportunity to discuss and consider it; that if any nation should refuse to submit a proper controversy to judgment or refuse to perform the judgment when rendered, or refuse to delay war until the combined powers have an opportunity to consider the subject, in all its respects, ostracism shall be the penalty inflicted upon the offending nation; that the compact should contain a program of disarmament.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 26.—The naval appropriation bill, with its three-year building program, was ordered favorably reported to the Senate this afternoon by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. All Republicans aligned against the measure.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane's bill, appropriating $100,000,000 for the reclamation of land for returning soldiers, was favorably reported by the Senate Public Lands Committee today.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Democratic members of the Senate in conference today decided to "push all appropriations through the Senate before the close of the present session of Congress.

Washington, Feb. 26.—An investigation of the administration of the office of alien property custodian by A. Mitchell Palmer was asked in a resolution introduced in the Senate today by Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Advertisement.

Is Your Blood Starving for Want of Iron?

Modern Methods of Cooking and Living Have Made an Alarming Increase in Iron Deficiency in Blood of American Men and Women

WHY NUXATED IRON SO QUICKLY BUILDS UP WEAK, NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN FOLKS—Over 3,000,000 People Annually Taking It in This Country Alone to Increase Their Strength, Power, Energy and Eudurance.

Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

THE ELDERLY, INACTIVE MAN
THE TIRED, NERVOUS HOUSEWIFE
THE RUN-DOWN BUSINESS WOMAN
THE EXHAUSTED BUSINESS MAN

"Is your blood starving for want of iron? Iron is red blood food. If you were to go without eating until you became weak, thin and emaciated you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Modern methods of cooking and the rapid pace at which people of this country live has made such an alarming increase in iron deficiency in the blood of American men and women that I have often marvelled at the large number of people who lack iron in the blood, and who never suspect the cause of their weak, nervous, run-down state. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition, due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body, something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"For want of iron you may be an old man at thirty, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all 'run-down,' while at fifty or sixty, with plenty of iron in your blood, you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy.

"As proof of this take the case of Former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential Nominee Charles A. Towne, who at past 58 is still a veritable mountain of tireless energy. Senator Towne says: 'I have found Nuxated Iron of the greatest benefit as a tonic and regulative. Henceforth I shall not be without it. I am in a position to testify for the benefit of others to the remarkable and immediate helpfulness of this remedy, and I unhesitatingly recommend Nuxated Iron to those who feel the need of renewed energy and the regularity of bodily functions.'

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, keen, forceful men and healthy, rosy-cheeked women by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron."

In commenting upon the value of Nuxated Iron as a means for creating red blood, strength and endurance, Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, says:

"Scarcely a day goes by but that I see women whose careworn faces, dragging steps and generally weak, tired appearance show unmistakable signs of that anaemic, run-down condition usually brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

"There can be no strong, healthy, beautiful women without iron, and inasmuch as refining processes and modern cooking methods remove the iron of Mother Earth from so many of our most common foods this iron deficiency should be supplied by using some form of organic iron just as we use salt when our food has not enough salt.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you good, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of an anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. Give such a woman a short course of Nuxated Iron and she often quickly becomes an entirely different individual—strong, healthy and rosy-cheeked. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe, aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength builder."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is used by Dr. Sullivan and others with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. After several applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.—Advertisement.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if cross, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company.—Advertisement.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers—No pain!

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

AMERICAN GIVES COLONEL JOY AT FRONT

Louis E. Daigneault Describes How He First Read Boston Speech of Gen. Edwards

James E. Warren of No. 18 Byron avenue, Lawrence, has received a letter from Colonel Louis E. Daigneault of the 51st Brigade Headquarters Detachment about reading a Boston American in France.

The letter in part follows:

"Varennes in Argonne—Haute-Marne.

"Dear friend James: I had quite a change of experience the other day. You may not know that newspapers are awfully scarce, and we took to reading our shirts [illegible] for Pilgrims of the Night as a pastime. But the other day a Boston American with our noble, courageous and valiant General Edwards' speech got in, and everyone of the boys gave up shirt reading to listen to one of the boys reading out loud.

"And say, James, that little General is some boy. He led our division in all the big battles we had in this country, and everyone of us thinks the world of him and we all regret his loss. There isn't one man in our division that wasn't willing to give his neck for that man and I will tell you the reason why.

"Every time we went into battle we were sure he was within reach of any part of his division and most of the time he was in the front lines with the infantry and every man was alike to him. He knew that he was made out of flesh and bones, with human blood running through their veins and that we could fight just so long, but some others of his rank don't look at us that way.

"It seems as though they take us for long-eared horses and we must stay up under any kind of a strain, and that is the reason why our division fought so nobly under his command and did such good work in this war. Every boy of this division adores General Edwards and are eager to see him lead his Yankee Division in the streets of Boston on our return.

"We all hope he will be given the honor of leading our parade in America on our arrival there. Yours truly,

"LOUIS E. DAIGNEAULT,
"51st F. A. Brigade, Hdq. Det., A. E. F."

PREDICT DEFEAT FOR SUNDAY BASEBALL

Two Members of R. I. Senate Committee to Bury Bill, Is the Claim

Providence, Feb. 26.—Two members of the Senate Judiciary Committee will bury the Sunday baseball bill when it reaches the Senate for concurrence, according to a plan on the part of members, the knowledge of which is said to have aroused other members of the committee, who say they will demand a show-down.

With the House Judiciary Committee in favor of reporting the act, which action is looked for this week, it is said the Senate Judiciary Committee will not report it after it reaches the committee.

Sunday baseball was legalized by the House of Representatives at the last session only to be buried by the Senate Judiciary Committee. According to a reliable source, Senators Gorton of Pawtucket and Head of Jamestown of the committee will vote to keep the "pesky" bill in committee, while Senators Geary, Providence; McCabe, Burrillville; Taylor, Hopkinton; Keach, Cumberland and Levy of Newport are said to be ready to combat the opposition in the event an effort is made to "black-jack" the bill in committee. "Commercializing baseball" is said to be the principal objection.

Majority leaders credited with guiding legislation, say the bill will be passed with restrictions as to the vicinity of churches where Sunday baseball may be played.

RUTH RIDICULES $5,000 OFFER; NAMES HIS PRICE---$15,000

By NICK FLATLEY.

BATTERING BABE RUTH, most sensational individual in the world of baseball, will not play for the Boston champions this year unless his salary demands are met. He states this without qualification. And his demands are far from being agreeable to the Red Sox officials.

Battering Babe thinks he's worth $15,000 a year. He has been tendered a contract for $5,000. So, thus far, there remains the slight difference of $10,000 between what the big hitter-pitcher-outfielder-first baseman wants and what the club is willing to pay him. It will take yards of argument before that difference is ironed out.

The club president has declared that he will have nothing whatever to do with the holdouts, and that they will have to come to him to talk business. Young Mister Ruth states with equal force he isn't going to do any worrying about another contract. The club knows what he asks, he says. If he gets a document for that much money he'll sign. If not, he states he'll go in the movies, or the fight game, or something like that.

Right here it might be appropriate to state that the greatest of home-run clouters has one bona fide offer from the movies, and has half a dozen chances to hop into the fistic game. His presence alone at a fight club attracts more attention than that of the star boxers.

Ruth Has Bunch of Powerful Arguments.

BATTERING BABE brings forth an army of arguments to back up his stand. First and foremost, he declares, he stepped into the breach last season, pitched, played left field and first base, when regulars were hurt, or the team needed his hitting. Then, he states, as every fan knows is true, he was considerable of a drawing card last year. As for that argument, it's our own opinion that after Babe got hitting them out last season, and playing various positions, he was worth at least $5,000 per week at the gate to the club. The papers in the towns which the Sox visited were plastered with pictures and notices of Ruth, Ruth, Ruth.

Further, and justly it would seem, Battering Babe feels he earned a raise in pay last season. But his contract in 1918 was also for $5,000, the tag end of a long term agreement made before he had become the chronic leading southpaw of the American League. Of course, Babe got a bonus of $2,000 last season, but that only after he jumped the team in the thick of the fight, and retreated to his home in Baltimore.

Battering Babe is undoubtedly as great a drawing card as baseball has ever known; also as valuable an asset in the playing line. He can pitch, hit and field, as can none but the real stars. He is the greatest combination of all three qualifications ever known to the game. Economy is, of course, the watchword in baseball just now. But it's hard to see how it will affect the slugging youngster, any more than it will Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker or Grover Cleveland Alexander.

* * *

Lauds Wagner for Helping Out Champions.

THE customary baseball holdout is like the bock season—comes with each Spring. But young Mister Ruth is different. He's such a popular and picturesque individual his every move is watched in all corners of the land. So his own views on the coming season are interesting, to say the least. They follow:

"I'm worth more money than I've been offered, and I'm going to get it or I won't be in there. That goes! I'm not stuck on myself, but I know what I did last year, and I have something coming to me. I have watched a lot of other fellows getting theirs, while I was just breezing along, and I've made up my mind to collect. That's all there's to it. I am young in the game yet, and I only want to earn what I think I have coming.

"And I don't think what I've asked is a bit too much. I know that the contract I got was a joke. I went out there last year, pitched in my turn, and played left field and first base the rest of the time. Playing that bag I nearly had my legs cut off a few times, but I never quit the job.

"Sure, I love to play, but I've got to have something for the days when the old arm slows up, and I cannot see those fast ones coming. I've realized I haven't been much of a business man heretofore, and decided to change. I want to play in Boston, of course, though I sure will miss old Heinie Wagner, who sure was a whole lot of the brains of the team, but until I get a contract fixed, I'm a business man, not a ball player.

"After that I'll turn my attention to busting out a few more of those homers. Now I'm going back to the farm, and wait to see what happens."

And there you have the situation, more or less, in a nutshell.

Doyle Picks a Tartar in Fitzsimmons Chap.

PAUL DOYLE of New Haven lost a perfectly good reputation as a classy boxer when he bumped into Eddie Fitzsimmons of New York at the Armory Club. Paul looked like a real winner hereabouts until Eddie turned attention to him for some twelve rounds. Now his glory has faded. Little Fitzy, who shoots left-handed, hit Doyle with more kinds of punches than will be regretted after July 1. He didn't flatten him, or anything of the kind, but he certainly mussed him up quite a lot.

Morgan produced another star in Johnny Clinton, who took Shaver O'Brien along for quite a beating in the ten-round affair. The local youth started well, but Clinton was entirely too active and aggressive. Willie Coogan and Poppey Leahy produced another of those draws, still leaving a palpitating universe wondering who is the champion in their class over South Boston way.

The club officials informed the populace also that Charley Parker, that popular chap, and Harry Carlson would be the entertainers next week.

TWO AND THREE
PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER
WITH "BUGS" BAER..

THIS stuff they label fashion is a queer bird.

Ladies are now carrying billygoats around as pets. A Wilhelmgoat is just as good as extract of violets and you don't have to bother about pulling the cork out.

A billiamgoat makes a fine four-legged lorgnette. Sweet cookies! You can't tell what the frails are going to do next. They wrap steam radiators around their necks in Summer and rattle around in blizzards with nothing on but a couple of red heels and three or four yards of talcum powder. And they're entitled to vote.

* * *

THIS billygoat business is only the start of the zoo junk. When the shrills start wearing porcupines for sofa cushions, that's when the committee will award 'em the brown derby.

They'll be using zebras for English tea tables and throwing soprano fits because they won't be able to teach giraffes to canter under Fords like carriage dogs. Wow!

That last one may sound kerfoolish, but you can't tell what a girl will do when she decides to have the most stylish chin in the works.

Last few years, they were satisfied to swindle a walrus' wife out of her hide, but this season they want to skin the poor animals and use the remains as a household pet.

* * *

CAN'T tell where this animal craze will stop. Destination is as uncertain as a freight train on a downgrade with the engineer full of stew per cent alcohol.

They'll be training fleas to be beauty spots next. Can you pipe the village queen searching for a thousand-legged beauty spot that was supposed be be behind her ear, but suddenly switched its fleaish mind and decided to travel for the Winter?

* * *

WHEN the war was on, every chicken in the country wanted to be a Joan of Arc. Now with this billygoat bunk swinging the blonde vote, every flapper wants to be a Joan of Noah's Ark.

You said it. Fashionable chirping will limp something like this:

DUMBURG, Wrong Island: While waiting for a new war to knit for, the Dumburg Knitting Club, which has been knitting left sox for soldiers, decided to hold their annual whale hunt. First prize was won by the wife of the village cut-up, who led the grand march exactly two jumps ahead of a wild Belgian ingrown hare. The affair was a wonderful success. Dinner consisted of oats, bran mash and cracked corn cobs.

Torpid, New York: Mrs. Sappington Sapp, the dean of the Veteran Debutantes of America, is in the Torpid garage with a sprained lap. Mrs. Sapp was trying to break in an elephant as a lap dog. After her chassis is straightened out Mrs. Sapp will scratch elephants off her visiting list. Society will remember that our beautiful dean is the pioneer who introduced snapping turtles into cotillions. Her husband is a well-known travelling man. We don't blame him.

* * *

Useless, Connecticut: The semi-annual hop of the Sweet Things Seminary was one of the most successful stampedes ever pulled off here. While riding a kangaroo in the Virginia reel, the town constable violated the city traffic rules by dancing north on the left-hand side of the street. By the time the vehicles were straightened out Mrs. Gink discovered that some slicker had speared her lavalliere of white mice. All the dancing partners were returned to their cages in the Zoo and will be searched tomorrow.

East Junk, New Jersey: The wedding of the Van Gappers attracted great interest in society circles here. It will be remembered that Mrs. Van Gapper, nee Boneskull, created the charming custom of having six chimpanzee bridesmaids at weddings. The bridegroom startled the assembled guests by placing the wedding ring on a chimpanzee's left foot. He apologized by saying that he was very nearsighted. He had better get his 2 per cent. optics recruited up to full war strength before Mrs. Van Gapper comes out of her rye highball swoon. The Van Gappers will leave for a wedding trip on the Weehawken ferryboat. The Van Gappers have lived longer in East Junk and paid less rent than anybody now in society.

Yokel-Kilonis Are in Fine Shape for Mat Go

Mike Yokel, world's middleweight wrestling champion, is in Boston and reports himself in tip-top shape for his title combat with John Kilonis, rugged Greek grappler, at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. The match looms up as one of the gala treats of the mat season.

Charley Metro and Tom Papas of Lowell hook up in the preliminary. They will go to it in a one-fall match without time limit.

Caldwell's time was 1:16 3-5. Homer Baker, the fourth starter, slipped and fell twenty yards from the start and retired.

Lieutenant Bob Simpson of the 44th Infantry, stationed at Presidio, San Francisco, captured both the high and low hurdles.

Joie Ray of the Chicago A. A., captured the Rodman Wanamaker trophy by winning the mile and a half invitation race for the third time. His time was 6:51. Ray finished half a lap ahead of his nearest rival.

Loren Murchison of St. Louis won the 70-yard dash handicap, from scratch, in 7 2-5 seconds. Ten minutes later he annexed the special invitation scratch dash at 70 yards in the same time.

Penn won the one mile intercollegiate relay from scratch in 3 minutes 34 3-5 seconds. Dartmouth was second and Massachusetts Institute of Technology was third.

EMPLOYED BOYS' MEET TO BE CLOSED AFFAIR

The athletic meet for employed boys, which will be held at the Boston Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, March 15, is to be a closed affair; no part time high school athletes will be allowed to enter. The preliminary heats in the "600," and possibly the "300," will most likely be run off the Thursday before the meet because of the large number of entries.

The Fore River Company of Quincy is planning upon entering a strong team.

HARVARD HOCKEY CUBS GET MATCH WITH TIGERS

With Yale's hockey cubs registering fear, Harvard 1922 has agreed to meet Princeton at Brooklyn, Saturday night. The Eli youngsters refused to play their Crimson rivals either at Concord, N. BEN JAMES AND HANDY TO GET BIG OVATION

Brookline's two well-known natators, Sergeant Ben James and Leo Handy, will make their re-appearance in the Brookline swimming tank tomorrow night.

The program will open with an exhibition of fancy swimming by James, and he is bound to receive a wonderful reception.

He was recently presented a Distinguished Service Cross for gallant service overseas with Battery A, 101st Field Artillery. James has the distinction of being the first man in his battery to fire a shot at the Boches.

There will also be cheers for Leo Handy, former Brookline High star and later of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, where he distinguished himself, and more recently of Bumkin Island. Handy was recently given his honorable discharge from the navy.

Sidney Biddell, Scranton, Foster and Untersee will represent Tech in the relay event.

Michael Prendergast, recently discharged from the naval service, having been stationed at Newport News, and now attending Boston University; Eliot Church, Wagner, Carter, E. Untersee, James, Thomas Kelley, Herbert Holm and Don and Phil Richardson are other prominent entries.

The card embraces the fifty-yard dash, fifteen-yard back stroke, 100-yard swim, 200-yard swim, diving, funny costume race, one length race for boys, one length race for midgets, diving and underwater swimming by midgets, water polo and novelty events.

TENDLER AND WELLING COMING IN AT 133 LBS.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 26.—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia's crack lightweight, and Joe Welling, Chicago battler, meet in an eight-round bout at the Newark Sportsmen's Club tonight. DUFFY ON DECK IN CAGE WITH FULL SQUAD

Harvard's complete baseball squad was booked to report to Coach Hugh Duffy in the cage on Soldiers Field this afternoon. The cage is plenty big enough to permit a limited amount of fielding work, and Duffy plans getting down to business at once.

Duffy reports himself well satisfied with the form his battery men have shown indoors. He is keeping his own counsel, but the tip is out the Crimson is going to have a winner on the diamond this Spring.

Among the most promising veterans down to report today were W. W. McLeod, R. E. Cross and L. B. Evans, all captains of last year's informal team; H. P. King, leader of last year's freshman's nine; E. L. Casey, football star and captain of the 1919 baseball team, and Tom Enwright, former football star.

Additional seasoned material includes R. Emmons, T. J. Meehan, W. J. Murray, W. B. Frothingham, J. T. Baldwin, M. P. Davis, R. S. Humphrey and E. L. Bigelow.

Amateur Boxers in Star Bouts at the C. A. C.

The amateur boxers hold forth at the Commercial Club quarters tonight, and from all appearances the West End Club quarters will be crowded. Two special bouts have been arranged with Barney McAtee, the sensational amateur midget, meeting Freddie Saterelli, the youth who recently stopped the champion of the bantam tribe.

In the second special Freddie Madden will take on Henry Regan at 126 pounds. In addition, the amateurs will box in the 108, 115, 125 and 135-pound classes.

JIM FITZPATRICK SLAB RELIANCE OF B. C. NINE

Battery candidates were called out at Boston College and brought forth a wealth of good material, including a fine lot of veterans.

Jim Fitzpatrick, one of the cleverest portsiders in college ranks, will doubtless be the mainstay of the pitching staff. Fitz has shown so much skill in his work at Boston College the past two years big league scouts have constantly been on his trail.

Besides this, reliable Eddie Boyce, a right-hander who can also shine in the outfield, and is a tidy sticker; Murray, a veteran, and Henry Shanahan, who was quite some boy at Boston College High, seem to shape up as headliners.

On the receiving end are Captain Louis Urban, who will probably do the bulk of the big mitt work, assisted by Phil Corrigan, Frank Morrissey of last season's nine and Henry Mueller, who played in the outer gardens last Spring.

The only hitch in proceedings at University Heights lies in the choice of a coach. As soon as this occurs all the candidates will report and work will start in earnest.

LOUIS URBAN NAMED CAPTAIN OF B. C. NINE

Louis Urban of Fall River, heavy-hitting backstop of the Boston College nine has been elected captain for the coming season. He is famous as the possessor of the long-distance clout record at University Heights, and has always been a dependable backstop.

After preparing at Fall River Tech, Urban entered Boston College and has made a classy name for himself on the gridiron and diamond alike. He has a great throwing arm; is a past master at handling Jim Fitzpatrick's speedy delivery and is a consistent long-distance slugger.

Urban is now a double captain, being leader of this year's basketball five.

This Day in History—Feb. 26, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the escape of Napoleon from Elba in 1815. The ex-Emperor's return through France was in the nature of a triumphal march. In a short time he was again at the head of an army, and not until after Waterloo was his power at an end. He was then sent to St. Helena.

I turned away, filled with disgust, at such ridiculous trickery. I had hated the unwashed scoundrel from the very first time I had set eyes upon him, but my detestation was now increased a hundredfold.

How could the fellow reconcile his assurance with the fact that such big sum in German gold twenty-mark pieces had been found in the man's safe?

For years the traitor Miassoyedoff had been in Germany's pay, and had been the puppet of Berlin, just as certain French and Italian officials had been.

Potsdam's will bid for world-power.

But as a true Russian, I am glad that the scoundrel received his deserts, for, notwithstanding the urgent appeals of the Czarina to Nicholas and the Minister of Justice, he was hanged.

Alexandra Feodorovna was frantic in her endeavors to save his life. The situation was pitiable—that of an Empress striving to rescue one of the pawns in Germany's great game.

The day after she came to me with the news of the execution Nicholas left for the battle front in Poland. Though the world was kept in ignorance, in 1915, we had few arms and practically no effective munitions, thanks to the Kaiser's agreement with Soukhomlinoff. Most of our shells were "duds," and thousands of Russian soldiers massed on the Polish front had no other arms than a walking stick! Such was Russia's great offensive, termed by some of British journalists as "the Russian steam-roller"!

Ah! when I read those printed words of misguidance how I sighed, for by that time I knew that the downfall of the Romanoffs was an accomplished fact. The Kaiser had conspired with the Empress for a victory over the Russian arms, but he had been guilty of deep double-dealing. He had at the same time plotted the wiping out of the imperial dynasty—a plot of which Alix had never dreamed the Emperor William capable.

Times without number, when we discussed things, she would refer to the Kaiser as "dear brother William." Rasputin, with his sinister and insidious influence over her, also firmly believed the German Emperor to be his protector and not his destroyer.

Yet in the end it was the Kaiser who, through his secret agents, betrayed and destroyed him, just as Alexandra Feodorovna was betrayed and the great house of Romanoff was swept into the melting pot.

Of these historic secret councils at Rominten the world has, until the present, known nothing.

His Great Object

The Kaiser William had placed Alix of Hesse as Czarina of Russia with one object in view, the great object of his life as War Lord, namely, to conquer our gigantic empire and make it a vassal of Potsdam.

Alix had acquiesced in all that the Kaiser had suggested, and when we left Rominten she was in high spirits, declaring to me that she had greatly benefited by the quiet fortnight spent in that huge forest of pines.

Quiet! Save the mark! It was the beginning of the end of the imperial house. Alix was playing with fire, but she never dreamed that when the explosion occurred the Emperor William was to turn his back upon her and never lift a finger to save her from arrest and exile.

Of my own personal affairs I need say but little.

My attachment to Baron Boris Tzankoff, who was serving at our embassy in Rome, and my subsequent marriage, was regarded with disfavor by my imperial mistress. In consequence the Baron went to live in London, and, greatly to Anna Vyrubova's delight, I accompanied him.

Alix expressed the deepest regret at my departure, but, after all, my place was beside my husband, and further, I was sorry to escape from the constant intrigues and petty jealousies which are inseparable from life at court. For a year we lived very happily in Kensington, and had many friends in the diplomatic circle, though my husband had retired from the service.

Suddenly a great blow fell upon me. Boris contracted pneumonia and died. For two months I remained grief stricken and inconsolable in Paris, when one day I received a letter of condolence from the Empress urging me to return to court and resume my duties.

Thus once again I found myself back at Tsarkoe-Selo, in the midst of further desperate intrigues in which Protopopoff and Rasputin with the connivance of Alexandra Feodorovna, were juggling with the nation's destiny.

I had returned only a few weeks when yet another plot was hatched by the "Dark Forces."

General Soukhomlinoff, with whom Colonel Miassoyedoff had been on such intimate terms, had fallen under suspicion, and, though the Empress had done all in her power to prevent the downfall of the Kaiser's puppet, the Czar had been compelled to dismiss him from office, though he was retained in the Emperor's suite, and still had his seat in the Upper Chamber.

Inquiry Ordered

Alix, together with Rasputin and Sturmer, was striving to reinstate him, when suddenly an inquiry was ordered into the ex-Minister's conduct while holding his portfolio.

News of this greatly perturbed the Empress, who came to me one day in a most agitated state, saying:

"Zeneide, they have arrested General Soukhomlinoff! The fools! I tried to prevent it, but could not. Oh, if Nikki were only here! What can I do?"

In reply to my inquiry as to the reason of the arrest, Her Majesty said:

"The police this morning paid a domiciliary visit to the general's house, and carried away all his correspondence and papers in four big chests. They then interrogated the general and his wife, and subsequently carried the ex-minister off to the Fortress of Peter and Paul."

"Of what is he accused?" I asked, well knowing the ghastly truth.

"Of nothing, so far as I can discover. There is no actual charge—only suspicion. I have just seen the father, and he suggests that I ask Nikki to release him at once. Give me a telegraph-form."

I placed one in her hand whereupon she took out her little code-book and wrote a message addressed to the Czar, who was at the Galician front.

As I assisted to put it into their private code I knew that it read as follows:

"Imperative that you order release of Soukhomlinoff at once, and that the inquiry be abolished. Our enemies are doing all they can against our house and against Russia. They will certainly endeavor by this move to accuse you of [illegible] and carelessness concerning the safety of the nation. Do reply that you have ordered the general's release and the return of his papers. The present position is decidedly dangerous.—Alix."

This I carried to the court telegraphist, and it was dispatched at once.

Three hours later the reply was handed to me. When I decoded I found that it read:

"Release of S. would be most impolitic at the present moment. I am told that friends of Russia, not our enemies, have instituted the inquiry. Fear that you take too grave a view of the matter. Am returning tomorrow.—Nikki."

When I handed the message to the Empress she started up, and flew into a great rage at her husband's blank refusal.

"He shall do it tomorrow, as soon as he returns," she cried. "We cannot afford to court inquiry like this! Miassoyedoff's case was a mistake, but this is a most colossal blunder. I must see the Father and ask his advice. Call him."

I did so and, entering the Empress' room with Anna, the monk remained a long time in consultation.

Long Conference

Later that day there was great activity. The Empress summoned both Sturmer and Protopopoff by telephone, and held a long conference with them.

Just as she had sought to extricate the colonel who had been hanged as a traitor, so was she now striving her hardest to prevent the trial of the ex-Minister of War. Every wire that could be pulled by the disgraceful camarilla was pulled, and pulled cleverly, too.

I was present when, on Nicholas' return from the battlefront, the Empress urged him to sign the order releasing him. This he refused to do, saying:

"I cannot interfere with the affair, Alix. Certain charges have been made and are being investigated."

"Yes. Our enemies declare that the general has connived with you in the holding back of war material. Think, if this gets out to our allies, the bad impression it will make. You must suppress it all—and at once."

"But the general has, it is alleged, been guilty of a wilful neglect of the needs of the army," the Emperor responded. "It is he, and he alone, who is responsible for our muddle in Galicia and for the advance of the enemy in Poland."

"I know that all sorts of things are alleged against him—that he is paid by Germany, and that he knowingly allowed that creature Miassoyedoff to learn the innermost secrets of our defences in order that they might be betrayed. All these things and others are alleged by our enemies. The evil tongue of gossip is busy with my own reputation. They declare the Father to be an impostor, and that Anna is a poisoner. Will you not lift your hand to protect me and yourself?" she implored.

"I have been warned against Rasputin and against Sturmer," the Emperor replied in his slow, cold tones. "Only a week ago I found upon my desk an anonymous letter declaring that both are in the pay of Berlin, and that you are aiding and abetting the conspiracy."

"Me!" shouted the Empress. "Ah! does not that in itself prove my words? Are we not here, in the palace, surrounded by secret enemies who seek to destroy the throne and end the dynasty? The Father is away in Pokrovsky. We have no one to speak to about holy things—no one to speak to about our distress. Oh, the torment of it all is awful!"

"I fully appreciate all that you say, my dearest Alix," said the Czar, extinguishing the cigarette he had been smoking. "But how can I act? If I ordered the general's release it would be tantamount to admitting that I, the Emperor, had connived in these administrative scandals."

For a few moments Alix remained silent and thoughtful. Then suddenly she said:

"If you dare not release the general, at any rate you can postpone his trial till after the war."

"If that is your wish I will do so," the Czar replied, and, crossing to his table, he sat down and wrote out an order which duly passed into the hands of Protopopoff and which actually delayed the trial until six months after the deposition and deportation of the imperial pair.

Anecdotes of the Famous

When Queen Mary was visiting one of the great cities of Upper India, during her tour in that country as Princess of Wales, she had an unusual experience.

She wished to see the place quietly, and asked a young officer to escort her incognito. They started on foot through the bazaar, and the Princess enjoyed it immensely. But at the first outpost the constables, seeing their police sahib coming, turned out and saluted with a clatter of arms.

"Now I particularly asked that there might be none of this," reproached the Princess.

"Oh, it's not Your Royal Highness they are saluting—it's I!" explained the officer.

And then the Princess saw her mistake.

"That notorious bully, Von Bissing," says the London Daily News, "figured in a capital story told in Belgian circles concerning the newly returned Burgomaster Max.

"Booted and spurred, helmeted, and with sword clattering at his side, Von Bissing strode into M. Max's office one morning, and having intimated brusquely that he had something to say, was invited to take a chair. As he did so he drew his revolver and ostentatiously placed it within reach of his hand on the table.

"Without moving a muscle of his face, M. Max felt in his waistcoat pocket, took out his fountain pen and set it beside the revolver. 'And now,' he remarked, with an affable smile, 'we can talk.'"

Although often referred to as a saddler and tanner, Herr Ebert, Germany's dictator, is really a cartoonist. In his early days he was apprenticed to a harnessmaker, but at the age of twenty-one he became the editor of a Socialist newspaper, his articles in which attracted much attention.

A keen debater and clever politician, he has great influence among the organized workers of the Fatherland.

He now says that no true German would have treated the unfortunate Belgians as they have done. But it won't be forgotten that when Bethmann-Hollweg proclaimed that "necessity knows no law," and that Germany was "hacking her way through Belgium," he was one of the Socialist majority which cheered itself hoarse.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

When a Girl Marries

A New Serial of Young Married Life Told in Interesting Style

CHAPTER LXXXI.

(Copyright 1919, King Features Syndicate Inc.)

"MUST you go? Can't you stay just one teeny-weeny week with us, Father Andrew, dear? Plea-ase!" I begged the morning after Virginia returned the circlet of brilliants which Neal had given Phoebe.

"Well, now, Barbara Anne, do you s'pose that if I was calculating to stay I'd be packing up my duds like this?" said Father Andrew with one of his nice, slow smiles.

"No—I understand you're calculating to go—but I've been doing some calculating, too. Neal will be in quarantine for ten days, I'm sure. And I can't manage this situation about the ring unless you help me. So we'll send your ticket back by the hall boy downstairs and order you another for a week-from-sometime. How about it, dear?"

Father Andrew laid down the worn brown alligator slippers he was just about to poke into his bag, came over to me and pulled me down on his knees just as he used to do when I was a wee lass and ran crying from school with a tale of fancied—or real—wrongs.

"Barbara Anne, you listen to an old country man who loves you and who loved your mother before you—and loves her yet," said. "You've married your Jim and you're going to make a success of your marriage. But not by leaning on an old fellow who had to work things out for himself in his day. You got to learn to fit into molds better, girl. You got to learn to make up to folks a little mite more tactfully.

"Men don't like to have their folks or their belongings found fault with—they have to be mothered a whole lot by their wives. But the right thing for a fine, high-spirited girl like you is to figure things like this out for yourself—not to have 'em told to her."

"So you're going—for fear you'll be tempted to help me solve my marriage problem," I said, half in amusement, half in longing to have him stay and help me.

"I'm going because as I told you once, I don't believe in having strange fowls roosting in a new nest. And, Barbara Anne, I'm going because I don't want Neal to get a black spot on his heart from any bruise that's coming to him."

After that there was no protest I could make. And I didn't even have the privilege of being blue as I prepared Father Andrew's farewell lunch and helped him make ready to depart.

In the midst of things the phone rang, and—to my utter amazement—the voice at the other end announced itself as belonging to Pat Dalton.

Why should Virginia's husband be telephoning to me?

"Yes, Mr. Dalton," I said tentatively.

"Mrs. Harrison, I met Tom Mason at lunch yesterday, and he tells me your young brother has gone off to an artillery camp. I liked the young chap—want to wish him well—if I might send him some smokes?"

"That's very thoughtful of you. I remember how Neal took to you at that dinner out on the River road—have you seen much of him since?" I asked, sparring for time—and trying to figure out the real reason for this phone call.

"Yes, I've seen him round a few times. Well—Mrs. Harrison, you looked to be pretty sane and—a real woman—that day we met. Would you—would you give me an hour today? It would—mean a lot more to me than I can put into words right off the bat like this."

"Why?" I asked bluntly.

"I—I can't tell you over the phone. If you'd like to help a chap who's—almost in your family'——

As he said this, his scornful laugh came over the phone. I could vision as clearly as if he were here in the room with me—"Handsome Pat" Dalton's dark, Irish-blue eyes, his reckless, bitter mouth—and the careless way he had of tossing his head and smoothing back his iron-gray hair with one long-fingered, nervous hand.

What's a Good Wife?

A QUESTION OF UNIVERSAL INTEREST

Beatrice Fairfax Discusses the Qualifications Which She Thinks Make a Fine Helpmate

By Beatrice Fairfax

IT was a very blind world that used to take for granted that middle-aged women have outgrown romantic love.

Love!—an affair of the twenties. And ever afterward home and fireside and housekeeping, the cook book and the sewing machine. Whether a woman was married or single, whether she had known love or had only dreamed of it, the fire of romance were supposed punctually to die in her at thirty.

Then, two or three years ago, a European writer set the world gossiping by publishing a book called "The Dangerous Age." Dangerous, that is, because of its romantic susceptibility. Dangerous, because while it is particularly hungry for romantic love, romantic love isn't always within its reach. You see, we're not speaking of eighteen and nineteen, the time when romance promptly answers to romance. No, the "dangerous age" is—forty.

Eighteen and nineteen don't understand this idea in the least. They are incredulous and derisive. Everybody's safely married at forty, they protest. Everybody has a husband and a houseful of children. Isn't it only a little short of scandalous for a woman at that time of life to talk of romance?

The Rebirth of Love

But the truth is, of course, that there are plenty of women in the world who arrive at middle age with hearts unsatisfied. There are widows who have known a brief season of love, then a long period of loneliness, and then at forty still young, and with a keen zest for life, feel within themselves such possibilities of romance as twenty only gets a glimpse of.

There are unmarried women who have lost their lovers. There are others who never found the love ideal that their fastidious youth demanded. At forty life has taught these women a good deal. They feel that above all other things they have learned how to love. And their lonely natures do cry out for an object to spend this love on.

Isn't it entirely natural and reasonable?

A deeply interesting instance of this has just come to light in the love-letters written by the brilliant English woman, Anne Gilchrist, to our great American poet, Walt Whitman.

Mrs. Gilchrist was a widow. She hadn't cared deeply for her husband. He hadn't in the least typified romance to her. She was the affectionate mother of four children. She had a wide circle of friends, including the foremost writers and artists of England. She cared greatly for books and poetry. And she was a little more than forty. That is, she was at the very height of the dangerous age.

Then Walt Whitman became famous the world over by publishing his wonderful book of poems called "Leaves of Grass." The poems showed how deeply he understood the realities of life and love. To the lonely English woman they were like a personal voice crying loudly and directly to her hungry heart.

With perfect simplicity and naturalness, she answered the cry.

Love Letters to a Poet

She wrote Whitman a long letter, indeed a series of letters, telling him of the profound personal love that his poems had awakened in her, and taking it for granted that he, too, would be ready to love her and claim her as his wife.

It was magnificently romantic. And the letters themselves were the very breath of romance.

"My love rises up out of the weary depths of grief and tramples upon despair," she wrote him. "I can wait—any time—a lifetime, any lifetimes—I can suffer, I can dare, I can learn, grow, toil, but nothing in life or death can tear out of my heart the passionate belief that one day I shall hear that voice."

It was tragic that Whitman couldn't answer her in her own language, the language of passionate love. Instead he wrote her kindly, gently, briefly and therefore discouragingly. Yet after a few years still undiscouraged, Mrs. Gilchrist came to this country with her children and came to know Walt Whitman as a friend.

Two years later, when she went back to England, she, who wanted so much more, had learned the hard lesson of accepting the poet's mere friendship. Since Whitman could not meet her love with love she found a way to quiet that tumultuous heart of hers. And her dangerous age was over.

A woman must live considerably beyond twenty before she thoroughly understands the capacities of her own heart and gets near to the real meanings of life.

But the unhappy truth has to be faced that by the time she has learned to love in the most thorough and big-hearted way the chances are considerable against her finding a heart that can answer to her own.

His Kind

A young imp of a boy had been sent to a reformatory. He was interviewed by the matron.

"Are you the matron?" he asked.

"Yes, dear."

"Well, then," said the imp, "I am one of those boys who can only be managed by kindness, so you had better get some sponge cake and oranges at once."

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft, curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by all the large Boston Drug stores and all druggists everywhere under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy which nearly always accompany excessive thinness soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION: — Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire

STEEL INDUSTRY AWAITS PRICE FIXING PLAN

The steel trade is greatly interested in statements that the government, through its price conference board, will ask manufacturers to forego profits for a time, "if not to actually absorb some of the already accumulating surplus."

It is [illegible] steel producers [illegible] that such a suggestion is [illegible] and are [illegible] say the industry will eschew the whole business if the government attempts such a plan. The steel trade is not enthusiastic apparently over conferring with government representatives on steel price readjustment.

As regards the probability of prices being reduced before April 1, steel men are silent as a class and rather glum in their attitude. It is said that producers have not considered prices since the American Iron and Steel Institute meeting in December last.

Generally speaking, the situation in the steel industry is rather better than it was expected at the beginning of the year would be the case at this time.

When Mr. Schwab returned from Europe he said he saw no immediate foreign outlet for American finished steel. In this country steel consumers are [illegible] and it is said to be going on [illegible] to some extent.

RAILS ADVANCE IN MIDDAY TRADING

Oils Weaken in the Afternoon; Motors at Year's Highest Prices

By W. H. ROSS.

Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York in the afternoon although [illegible] was then below the [illegible] morning, taking the list as a whole. Oils were a group to weaken after midday, while a number of specialties had gains reduced. Rails were not as strong as at noontime, when speculative attention was focussed upon them for awhile. Reading, Union Pacific and Kansas City Southern advanced the most. Money was firm, the call rate for loans and renewals being 5½ per cent. For all industrials it was 5½ per cent. American Woolen common was a weak issue, declining more than a point. There was some realization selling early in the afternoon.

GAINS IN THE AFTERNOON.

By 2 o'clock the market was steady, but not so active, and gains included Kelly-Springfield 2½ at 111½, its highest having been 113; General Motors 2⅝ at 146½, it having sold at 148⅞; Pierce Arrow 1⅛ at 44⅛; Studebaker ⅞ at 60⅝; Willys-Overland ⅝ at 27½; Texas & Pacific 1¼ at 33¼; Reading 1⅛ at 81⅝; Union Pacific 1⅛ at 131; Distillers 1¼ at 56½; Corn Products 1 at 48⅞; Marine preferred 2⅛ at 100¾, after selling at 101¼; Sumatra 1⅛ at 115⅛; Bethlehem B 1⅝ at 64⅝; Anaconda ⅞ at 60½; Utah 1 at 69; Industrial Alcohol 1¼ at 110⅜, and U. S. Steel ⅞ at 94⅞.

Among declines were Mexican Petroleum 3 at 176½, Texas Co. ¾ at 192, Royal Dutch ⅝ at 95½, Pan-American ¾ at 79, Tobacco Products ½ at 88½ and American Woolen common 1⅛ at [illegible].

In Boston, where American Telephone had sold at 106, its highest for the year, trading had been of about the usual character and volume. Gains included Stewart 1⅛ at 38½; United Fruit 2 at 165; U. S. Smelting ⅝ at 47⅞; Swift ⅜ at 122⅞; New Haven ⅛ at 29⅛, and Copper Range ¼ at 49⅜. Among declines were East Butte ⅛ at 8⅛, and Century Steel ⅛ at 11⅛.

GOOD UNDERTONE TO MARKET.

Demand for stocks increased overnight, and there were enough buying orders from the "outside" to impart a good undertone to the market at the start. Opening prices were higher in many instances, although initial gains were small. Business was of moderate scope at the start, but trading soon became active. Morning transactions were at the rate of a million shares for the day. The price trend continued upward. Among issues to sell at their highest for the year were Studebaker, General Motors, Willys-Overland and Bethlehem B. Motors were extensively dealt in, while rubber issues were also prominent. Steels were quiet most of the time, as were coppers, but the latter were more in evidence than for several days. There was more business in rails around midday, when the market was still strong. Kelly-Springfield continued to advance, selling at a new record highest price.

MARINE PREFERRED ADVANCES.

Marine preferred sold up to 101¼ during the morning, an advance of nearly four points. President Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine Company says there has been no change in regard to the sale of the corporation's ships and that the United States government did not make its offer conditional upon British Admiralty approval. It was reported from Washington that British opposition had blocked the deal. "There has been no change in the situation whatever," said President Franklin.

High Call Money Rate

Quotations for call money late Monday afternoon in New York of 7 to 7½ per cent. were the highest rates known in that market since 1917.

GRACE VALENTINE, who has won notable success as movie-mad model in "Lombardi, Ltd."

SAYS LONDON LOOKS GOOD TO ACTORS

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Grace Valentine is very nearly as funny off the stage as she is on.

Funnier, some rival comedienne might intimate acidly, but that isn't so. Nobody could be any funnier than Daisy Mahoney, the movie mad model of "Lombardi, Ltd."

It was just after Miss Valentine had made her brazen advances to Lombardi in the second act that I met her in the wings. I had intended to meet her just after an earlier scene in which she wore an Eastern costume, but the trolley broke down, and I was late.

INNOCENT, BUT NOT FOR LONG.

"Was anybody ever so innocent as Daisy Mahoney?" I demanded.

"Oh, yes," replied the little actress in her peculiar drawl. "Oh, yes. Maybe not very long, but"——

"S-s-s-sh," said the stage manager to check my laughter, and Leo Carrillo, out before the footlights, cast an indignant glance in my direction, for the laugh was heard out front.

"Do you like the part?"

"Oh, yes. I never get tired of Daisy. I would like to go on playing her, but Mr. Morosco is going to put me out in a new play next year which the Hattons are writing. I think "Lombardi" may go to London. You know, London is going to look an awful lot better to actors next year than it ever did before."

"Why?"

Gracie looked at me pitifully.

"Because the bone dry amendment doesn't apply over there."

BELIEVES IN PROHIBITION.

"Then you don't believe in prohibition?"

"Oh, yes I do. I believe that nobody should be allowed to drink, or smoke cigarettes, or go to the theatre, or play cards, or sit up after 9 p. m., or kiss a girl, or do anything else they want to do."

"Did you ever stop to think?" demanded Miss Valentine, "of the terrible results of people indulging themselves. Think of all the hearts that have been broken by kisses, of the money lost at cards, at the injurious effects of tobacco on the human organism.

"I believe that anything that anybody thinks is bad for anybody else ought to be prohibited."

"What will people do when all these prohibitions go into effect?"

"Do what I'll do," replied Gracie. "Emigrate or commit suicide."

ASK U. S. MINERS HELP IN EVENT OF BRITISH STRIKE

London, Feb. 26.—Robert Smillie, leader of the union miners in the United Kingdom, today made the following appeal to the coal miners of the United States: "I note that it is already rumored that arrangements are being made to import coal from America in the event of a strike here. I think I may appeal with full confidence to my comrades, the miners of the United States, to refuse to assist the British capitalists, who are trying to defeat our effort to improve the standard of living of our mine workers over here."

LANCASTER TO LOSE WOMAN POSTMASTER

Lancaster, Feb. 26.—Miss S. Agnes Thayer, who for the past four years has been postmaster at the Lancaster Centre office, has tendered her resignation. Her marriage to Marmaduke Brokaw, recently discharged from the service, is soon to take place. Francis W. Glover is stated to be a candidate.

Court-Martial Sentences for Privilege-Seekers

It is well that the government's dragnet into the noisome scandal in the Third Naval District with headquarters in New York, is to be extended from the sorry pedlars of soft berths and exemptions to their traitorous tempters.

Corrupt wealth is becoming defiant of everything.

It owns governors, hires legislators, influences judges and now is caught corrupting the nation's defence.

Is there nothing it would not defile?

To court-martial the naval officers who have been bribed in this naval scandal is, of course, necessary and proper. They have the intelligence to know what is due their country in a time of war, and if they lack the character to perform their duty they should be punished exemplarily.

BUT IF ANYBODY IS GOING TO BE IMPRISONED FOR SUCH AN OFFENCE, IT OUGHT EQUALLY TO BE THE RECKLESS POSSESSORS OF WEALTH WHO USED IT IN THIS TRAITOROUS MANNER.

These criminal rich who plied with successful temptation a few moral weaklings in uniform to win for their cowardly sons release from war perils personify treason at its very WORST.

Under the protection of our government these possessors of wealth have been fortunate far above the average. Yet they have used their fortune to debauch and to besmirch, so far as they could, an arm of their government's defence, the integrity and efficiency of which are of the utmost importance.

They have shown a craven eagerness to shirk for their own kin that liability to military service which by good citizens is accounted not only just, but supremely honorable.

And while thousands of sons of poorer citizens were not merely offering themselves to the navy, but yearning for posts of peril that they might better prove their mettle, these favored cowards, in the endeavor to sneak out of their share of the common obligation, were employing the wealth heaped up under democratic institutions to rot those institutions and to bespatter the good name of one of the most glorious agencies for the guarding of those institutions.

The black spot which the uncovering of this Third District scandal reveals upon the navy's escutcheon is SMALL compared with the smear of shame and dishonor which it discloses in our civil life.

The navy can be trusted under the firm guidance of Secretary Daniels, backed by its own high traditions, to make quick riddance of its few weaklings.

No citizen need fear that one of these culprit officers will escape exposure and severe discipline.

But to let the matter rest there would be a travesty of justice. The tempters must be made to stand for identification and for punishment alongside the tempted.

If the penalty prescribed by civil law is inadequate for their pusillanimous type of treason, cannot the military law be invoked?

WEALTH MUST BE TAUGHT THAT IT IS NOT IMMUNE FROM ALL MORAL AND LEGAL RESTRICTION IN THIS SO-CALLED REPUBLIC.

Do Workingmen Really Get More Than Their Share?

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

You find in the criticism of government management of railroads a great outcry about increased wages for the workers. You are told that the government couldn't continue managing the railroads because government officials ruin the country by increasing wages in order to please voters.

You read that the wages of railroad workers have been increased at the rate of more than five hundred million dollars a year, and may probably amount to eight hundred million. And if figures frighten you, you begin to shiver and say, "The country is going to the dogs. Workingmen will take everything. Let us hurry back to private ownership."

When you find out how many men there are working on the railroads, you find that the increase of eight hundred millions, the maximum suggested, would amount to about a dollar a day per man, a little less than four hundred dollars a year. Do you think a dollar a day is such an awful amount to add to the income of underpaid workmen? How much can be done with one dollar to feed a family now, how much to meet the INCREASED cost of food, and what about the total result, the effect on the public? Would this "terrific increase of workmen's wages" bankrupt the public? Hardly. You learn from accurate statistics that adding eight hundred millions a year to the wages of railroad workmen, naturally increasing the cost of freight, would add about THREE CENTS TO THE PRICE OF A BARREL OF FLOUR.

In other words, an increase of three cents in the price of a barrel of flour, and a corresponding increase in coal and other commodities, would take care of the eight hundred million dollars increase in the pay of workers. Wouldn't it be worth while to add a dollar a day to the pay of two million workmen at that price?

No country has ever been ruined by good pay for workers. And those that gain most from it are not the workmen, but the most prosperous class.

Give eight hundred millions more every year to the government workers. What becomes of the money? Do they hoard it, store it away, invest it and become plutocrats?

Not at all. They get it on Saturday, and on Monday their wives spend it for the household, for the children, for the doctors' bills, and perhaps occasionally a few dollars for something not absolutely necessary, including amusement and luxuries.

Add eight hundred millions a year to the dividends of a railroad, and the money goes in banks, a large part to private fortunes, already very big. It is stored away, added to the fund of those that already have enough.

This is not said in criticism of any man's fortune, honestly acquired.

There is just this difference between good wages and money paid out in dividends to increase big fortunes.

The money in the great fortune is like the water out in the ocean stored up. It will be used some time, of course.

Money paid out in wages is like the water that falls in rain on the land, fertilizing the land, increasing prosperity.

The wasteful competition, the wasteful methods in private ownership of railroads, would pay the increased wages of the workmen twice over easily.

IT'S SUNDAY morning.
AS I write this.
AND THROUGH the window
WHERE MY table is.
I MAY look away
FOR MILES and miles.
AND SO far as I look.
THERE'S NO other house
THAN THE one I'm in.
AND ALL I can see.
IS THE green of the fields.
AND THE pasture lands.
AND THE hills beyond.
AND FURTHER away.
WHERE THE sky comes down.
ARE MOUNTAIN peaks.
DEEP HIDDEN in snow
AND OVER them all.
FROM A cloudless sky
SHINES THE morning sun.
AND I know no care.
EXCEPT THAT I know
IN A day or two.
I MUST rise up.
AND TAKE to the road.
WITH MY change of clothes
AND MY Underwood.
AND LEAVE all this.
TO THE lowing kine
THAT WANDER about.
ON THE pasture lands.
AND THE hurrying "jacks"
THAT KNOWS no law.
BUT THE hunter's gun.
AND THE barking dogs.
AND IT seems to me.
AS I sit here.
ON THIS Sunday morn.
THAT EVEN the fields.
AND THE grazing herd.
AND THE two ranch dogs
AND THE feathered fowl
WHERE THE eggs come from.
AND THE orchard trees.
AND THE wind.
AND THE sun.
THAT THEY all know.
THAT IT'S Sunday morn.
AND THE ranchmen, too.
WHO WORK all week.
AND KNOW no rest.
UNTIL THIS day comes.
THEY ALSO know.
AND ONE of them.
I CAN see just now.
FROM WHERE I sit.
AS HE whittles a stick.
AND PUFFS at a pipe.
AND THAT'S how it was.
TILL A moment ago.
WHEN SOME one called.
FROM THE kitchen door.
AND SOME one else.
WENT OUT in the yard.
WHERE THE chickens are.
AND GRABBED a couple.
AND WRUNG their necks.
AND OUT in the kitchen.
IN A little while.
THE WOMEN folk.
WILL SWELTER and work.
FOR A couple of hours.
THAT WE may eat.
AND THAT'S how it is.
ON THE day of rest.
ON MOST every ranch.

I THANK you.

Who Pays?

By Win Brooks

ACROSS grim Flanders' plain the night wind sighs,
And on her breast from where the silver light
Of myriad stars illuminates the night
And on white wooden crosses softly plays,
Are borne men's voices and men's haunting cries—
Faint whisperings that ask, "Who pays? Who pays?"

From Flanders' plain across torn, wasted lands,
Where once stood sacred shrines of mighty God—
Temples of faith whose aisles fair virgins trod—
The night wind gathers strength along her ways;
She seeks small children who with blood-stained hands,
Outstretched, sob softly in the night, "Who pays?"

Across the ravished lands, then out to sea
She swings atop the hidden, unmarked graves
Of mother-dead who sleep beneath the waves.
Then into wrath, the peaceful deep she flays,
As mother-voices with their tender plea,
In anguish softly cry, "Who pays? Who pays?"

Letters to the Editor

League of Nations

Editor Boston American:

The constructive editorials of the Boston American have often pleased me. Your editorials and comic section are no doubt the best of any Boston newspaper.

When, however, you attempt an attack on the League of Nations, I fear you have overstepped your stride. This is true of your editorial of the 20th inst., headed, "The People Should Have a Say in So Vital a Question." The adherents of the League of Nations, I feel sure, would welcome a popular vote on the subject. The result of such a vote would not be in doubt once the public has been enlightened fully on the subject.

The League of Nations, you say, would make a dead letter of the Monroe Doctrine. The Monroe Doctrine died in April, 1917, when we entered the world war. It died, and no one mourned. Can the Monroe Doctrine be like the proverbial cat? I think not.

You say the proposed constitution of the League of Nations is an astounding document and then go on to say it has the same objects of the Quadruple Alliance formed in 1815.

No clear-thinking man who reads the constitution of the League of Nations will see very much resemblance to the Quadruple Alliance of 1815. The Quadruple Alliance made no provision for managing unruly States such as the Constitution of the League of Nations does. This is only one of several differences. All these differences have been formulated to be sure that the League of Nations shall not be, 'doomed to the same miserable failure."

The American people never would have gone into the war because of submarine outrages alone. We went into the war because we saw a chance to make this the last war. That is the main benefit to be gained. Are we going to throw it away, as you advocate? Have all the lives and billions in money been wasted? I think not. The League of Nations will see that they have not. The League of Nations will bring down to a minimum the possibility of wars in the future.

You speak of those not members of the League. You mention these to strengthen your argument against the League. Look beyond your nose. The League of Nations provides that any nation may become a member of the League.

You speak of the League as taking away our sovereign right to arm ourselves as we see fit. Are you of German faith? Do you believe that might must always rule the world? We fought Germany because of her policy that "Might is Right." Are we to adopt this policy now or are we to enjoy the fruits of our victory through the League of Nations?

IMPORTANCE OF TRIFLES; U. S. BUYS PICKLES

By Winifred Black

UNCLE SAM is buying hundreds of thousands of gallons of dill pickles to send over to France to the American soldiers.

Hurrah for Uncle Sam!

He isn't going to let those boys of ours get homesick for the want of a pickle or a piece of chocolate cake if he can help it.

Dill pickles! Do you like them?

I'm afraid I don't.

They're too big and too soft and too salty to suit me.

I like the little old-fashioned pickles, snappy and crisp and vinegary and just as sour as they can be, or else very sweet.

Pickled mangoes and pickled onions, and pickled beets and chow-chow pickles and picalilli—oh, they're all good, every one of them!

Pickles, jelly, jam, preserves—we can live without all these things, but how much they do mean to the way a meal tastes, don't they?

That's what's the matter with some women I know. They don't put up enough pickles or make enough jam when they're young and in the Summer of their lives, and when Winter comes—the Winter of old age, or even the Fall of middle age—they haven't a thing left for a little extra goody to decorate the table and gladden the eye for the famished family.

The "Little" Things

I do like to see a woman with an eye for a table decoration. Flowers are sweet and pretty, but, let me tell you, a nice shaky mould of currant jelly on a glass plate at one side of the table and a pretty mound of spiced black currants on the other side make you feel as if you were having a party even when there's nothing but a slice of cold meat and a slice of bread for luncheon.

Especially when you use the yellow teapot and the yellow tea cups and put a glass of yellow French marigolds right in the middle of the table.

Of course, there's just as much to eat, really, without the marigolds, but nothing tastes quite so good without them to look at, no matter what you say.

The man of the house will laugh if you say this to him, but you get him into the habit of marigolds, or nasturtiums, or any other simple, bright flower on the table, and then leave them off for a day or two, and see what'll happen!

He'll tell you afterward that he never noticed it, and maybe he didn't consciously, but he knew something was wrong, and went around with a queer feeling of being lonesome and neglected, and took it out in grumbling over the bills or the way his cigars go at the office.

What a lot they do mean in life—the pickles and jelly, and the jam and nosegays of existence.

That's what we women have to furnish. Put all the women out of the world and men would be sitting on the floor eating with their fingers and letting their whiskers grow, and hitting each other over the head with the bone from the roast and going right back to the caveman way of living, before the women had been gone six months.

Hurrah for the Pickles!

France and the Rhine cities are full of good-natured giants in khaki making kites for the children, and little wooden engines, and showing them how to spin tops Yankee fashion.

With such boys as that doing such things as these, how can we have the face to do anything but smile?

Hurrah for the dill pickles! But I hope Uncle Sam will send along some nice little, sharp, brittle ones, too. I believe a whole lot of our boys would like them the best, don't you?

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IDEALIZED IN ART

Howard Chandler Christy has idealized "The League of Nations" in a wonderful painting which we reproduce in full color next Sunday in the Advertiser and American. The ideals of President Wilson's fourteen points, he believes, are the ideals of America, and he has typified and grouped them in a way at once beautiful and inspiring. A picture worth keeping. Aeroplane Policemen
Neanderthal Hypothesis
Untaxed Oil Wealth

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Gibbs, a good war correspondent, says little men are the best fighters. "Undersized men, appearing nervous, as if they could never stand the battle strain, hold out better than the bigger men."

This may help anthropologists to explain the disappearance from this earth two hndred thousand or more year ago of the Neanderthal man. He was a powerful creature and, compared with the man of today, he was like a gorilla compared with a chimpanzee. He is supposed to have disappeared because his physical strength made him so conceited that he neglected to develop his brain. But, according to Gibbs, he may have been killed off in a fair fight by a smaller man ancestor of the man of today.

Everybody has read with horror about the killing of noblemen in the French revolution and again in the Russian revolution. It seems, however, that there is another side to the story.

When the Bavarians try to set up their own government, Eisner, the man they selected, is murdered by a young nobleman. And it is discovered that the nobility had prepared a long list of the people's leaders to be killed off. The situation apparently is "I'll kill you if you don't kill me."

For the first time a prisoner is taken to jail by aeroplane. Aeroplanes are to be used by the life-saving stations, in fighting forest fires and by the French in policing African deserts where brigandage thrives. The world will be made a safer as well as a smaller place by the aeroplane. That machine yesterday was used inspecting the Grand Canyon. It will soon visit both poles, the tops of the Hymalayas and every spot on earth.

We are getting back to the good old times. The Rivers and Harbors bill just adopted carries thirty-three millions for the pork hungry. It seems pitifully small, compared with sums to which we are now accustomed. The country for the next twenty-five years will have to pay one billion two hundred million, including seven hundred and sixty-five millions interest on bonds—all to be raised by taxation. And these figures are based on the assumption that all the American loans to the allies will be repaid.

Coal lands in Pennsylvania, privately owned, were assessed at one million and taxed accordingly. Following a protest the assessment is raised now to a hundred millions.

What about oil lands, the billions in wealth that private individuals have stored up and carry practically free of taxation? Couldn't some taxes be shifted from workingmen's houses to those gigantic reservoirs of wealth below the earth? Or is it, perhaps, Bolshevism to suggest that?

During the war everybody said the daylight saving idea was good. If good in war, why not good in peace?

The farmers don't like it. They say they were getting up early enough already. Opening city markets one hour earlier makes farmers get up too near midnight.

Beyond question, the daylight saving law is a great blessing to millions in cities. What is good for the city is good in the long run for farmers, whose produce the cities buy.

Congress should give the farmers a chance to think it over before changing a law which simply recognizes the common sense proposition that when nature begins her day earlier man should begin his earler.

It has been said that the farmer objects to daylight saving because it encourages the suburbanite to start a garden and raise his own food. The farmer is not as small as that. And if he were he should not be encouraged in the smallness.

Nearly all the news about labor having been bad news, an exception is welcome. The great building strike which came with the resumption of building has been settled through government intervention in the right way. Arbitration is to take the place of fighting that would impoverish both sides. When the nations are trying to establish a league of peace, it woul be a good idea for smaller groups—labor unions and employers' associations—to set the example. This is no time for any strike or other fight that can be avoided. There is enough trouble in the world.
